LAND OFFICE BUREAU.

Board of Property.

During the year there were fifty-seven applications filed for warrants to survey vacant lands. In some of these cases caveats were filed in opposition to the granting of the warrants, the caveators claiming in some instances that the lands applied for, had already been surveyed and that the title had passed from the Commonwealth to other parties under prior office rights. Other protests were made on the ground that the lands were improved, and the caveators asserted pre-emption rights, claiming that if the Commonwealth granted title at all, it should be to those who had made the improvements, as required by the act of 1874 regarding the granting of warrants for vacant land where the same has been improved.

It has been considered that the party making application and who is unsuccessful before the board has no recourse to press his claims to the land further than the decision obtained by the board, and it very often occurs on account of this limitation of the right of the applicant that the board is disposed to give him the benefit of all doubts in the case, in order that he may have an opportunity to go into the courts of law of the Commonwealth to further contest his rights in the matter. It has been the opinion of the board, therefore, as well as the opinion of the litigants before the board, that some law should be passed giving the applicant for a warrant, where the decision of the board is against him, the same right to commence an action at law, with a view of further protesting his rights, as the defeated party enjoys when the contest before the board has reference to the acceptance of a survey or granting of a patent. In other words, it is generally deemed proper that the action of the board on an application for vacant land should not be considered final. In view of this condition, a bill has been prepared and will be presented to the legislature giving the applicant for a warrant, where the decision of the board is adverse to him, the same rights enjoyed by the respective parties where the claim considered by the board has reference to the acceptance of the survey or granting of the patent. In accordance with this suggestion, the following bill has been prepared and is recommended to the favorable consideration of the legislature:

these records is the fact that many of our legislators are unaware of their great value.

EARLY LAND TITLES IN PENNSYLVANIA.

It has been customary during the past few years to publish with the general report of the department a history of some of the land purchases in the State. Heretofore, articles have been published on the Depreciation Lands, the Donation Lands, the Virginia Titles in reconsylvania, and a General Review of the Early Settlements and Purchases. In this report is published an article on the Lands Within the Purchase of 1784, written by Major R. H. Forster, of this department.

THE PURCHASE OF 1784.

At the close of the War of the Revolution, in the year 1783, the ownership of a large area of the territory within the charter boundarics of Pennsylvania was still claimed by the Indians of the several tribes that were commonly known as the Six Nations. purchase of lands from the Six Nations by the proprietary government of the province was made at Fort Stanwix in November, 1768, and the limit of this purchase may be described as extending to lines beginning where the northeast branch of the Susquehanna river crosses the northern line of the State, in the present county of Bradford; thence down the river to the month of Towanda creek, and up the same to its headwaters; thence by a range of hills to the headwaters of Pine creek and down the same to the west branch of the Susquehanna; thence up the same to Cherry Tree; thence by a straight line, across the present counties of Indiana and Armstrong. to Kittanning,* on the Allegheny river, and thence down the Allegheny and Ohio rivers to the western boundary line of Indian claim, therefore, embraced the province. The that part of the State lying to the northwest of the purchase lines of 1768, as they are here described. With the close of the Revolutionary struggle, the authorities of the new Commonwealth, anxiously looking to its future stability and prosperity, soon found themselves confronted with the duties and responsibili-

^{*&}quot;Canoe Place," so-called in the old maps of the State to designate the head of navigation on the west branch of the Susquehanna river, is the point at which the purchase line of 1768 from that river to Kittanning, on the Allegneny river, begins. A survey of that line was made by Robert Galbraith in the year 1786, and a cherry tree standing on the west bank of the river was marked by him as the beginning of his survey. The same cherry tree was marked by William P. Brady as the southeast corner of a tract surveyed by him, "at Canoe Place," in 1794, on warrant No. 3744, in the name of John Nicholson, Esq. The town of Cherry Tree now covers part of this ground. The old tree disappeared years ago. Its site, however, was regarded as of some historic importance, and under an appropriation of $1,500, granted by the Legislature in 1893, a substantial granite monument has been erected to mark the spot where it stood. ties different in many respects from those that had engaged their serious attention and earnest effort during the previous seven years of war. They were to enact just and equitable laws for the government of a new State, and to devise such measures as would stimulate its growth in wealth and population, and promote the development, settlement and improvement of its great domain.

As early as the 12th of March, 1783, the General Assembly had passed an act setting apart certain lands lying north and west of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers and Conewango creek to be sole for the purpose of redeeming the depreciation certificates gives to the crascers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line who had served in the War of the Revolution, and also for the purpose of making donations of land to the same officers and soldiers in compliance with a promise made to them by a resolution passed in 1780. It will be observed that when this act was passed the Indian claim of title to the lands mentioned was still in force; but the State authorities, though seemingly slow and deliberate in their actions, were no doubt fully alive to the necessity of securing as speedily as possible the right to all the lands within the State-about five-sixteenths of its area-that remained unpurchased after the treaty at Fort Stanwix in 1768. With that purpose in view, the first movement made by i General Assembly to be found on record was on the 25th day of September, This action is in the form of a resolution passed on that day by the recommendation of the report of a committee that had been previously appointed "to digest such plans as they might conceive necessary to facilitate and expedite the laying off and surveying of the lands" set apart by the act of the previous March. lution reads:

"Resolved, unanimously, That the supreme executive council be, and they are hereby authorized and empowered to appoint commissioners to hold a meeting with the Indians claiming the unpurchased territory within the acknowledged limits of the State, for the purpose of purchasing the same, agreeable to ancient usage, and that all the expenses accruing from the said meeting and purchase be defrayed out of the Treasury of the State."—Penna. Archives, Vol. X, p. 111.

It next appears by a minute of the Supreme Executive Council, of February 23, 1784, that Samuel John Atlee, William Maclay and Francis Johnston were on that day chosen commissioners to treat with the Indians as proposed in the resolution of the General Assembly. The gentlemen named—all of them prominent citizens—were informed on the 29th of the same month of their appointment, but they did not acknowledge the receipt of President Dickinson's letter until the 17th of May following. On that day Messrs. Atlee and Johnston reply in a letter of thanks for the honor conferred upon

AN ACT

Relative to applications for warrants for the vacant lands of the Commonwealth, filing of caveats against the granting of such warrants, their consideration by the Board of Property, and authorizing suits at law by either party that may be dissatisfied with the decision of the Board of Property in regard to granting such warrants.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That whenever an application shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of Internal Affairs, under the laws of this Commonwealth, for a warrant to survey any of the land therein claimed to be vacant, and a caveat shall be filed by any parties protesting against the granting of such warrant who shall assert their ownership or preemption right to the land described in the application, and such application for warrant and the caveat against the granting of the same shall be considered by the Board of Property and be determined either in favor of the applicant or the caveator, the warrant shall nevertheless be stayed for the term of six months, within which time the party against whom the determination of the board is made may enter suit at law, but not afterwards, and the party in whose favor the determination is made shall be deemed and taken to be in possession of the land described in the application to all intents and purposes necessary for trying the title, although the other party shall or may be in actual possession, but which supposed possession shall nevertheless have no effect upon the title; at the end of said term of six months, if no suit is entered, a warrant shall issue according to the determination of the board, upon the applicant producing a certificate of the prothonotary of the proper court that no suit is commenced; or, if a suit shall have been entered, a warrant shall, at the termination of such suit issue in common form to the party in whose favor the determination at law may have been made.

Sec. 2. No caveat or writing in the nature of a caveat hereafter to be entered in the office of the Secretary of Internal Affairs, against the granting of a warrant, shall continue to bar the issuing of such warrant to the person or persons applying for the same, his, her or their legal representatives, against whom such caveat may be entered, during a longer period than two years from the entry of such caveat, unless the applicant or caveator, his, her or their agents or legal representatives shall, within the term aforesaid, take out a citation thereon in order to bring any questions of dispute to a decision by the Board of Property.

COPYING RECORDS.

The provision made by the legislature for the employment of additional draughtsmen for the purpose of advancing the work of copying the old records and surveys in the department has resulted in the accomplishment of a great deal of this work. During the year, 5.124 old surveys were copied and bound in books, and the valuable data they contain have thus been put in a most durable form for the use of future generations. The preservation of these records of the land office is one of the most important duties devolving upon any branch of the State government, and if the matter were thoroughly understood by the members of the legislature, instead of the provision made some time ago for two additional draughtsmen, there would be five times that number employed in facilitating this necessary and urgent work. There are probably 200,000 papers of this nature which should be copied, and as the present force can not copy more than about 5,000 a year, the length of time that will be required to finish the work can be reduced to a mathematical certainty. This statement alone shows the importance of employing the force in the department, so far as possible, to advance this work, and it also shows that it would be to the interests of the Commonwealth to employ a larger force. It is known, however, that the legislature is generally opposed to the creation of new places for any of the executive departments of the state government, believing generally that an application for the creation of new office is based upon political grounds. It is proper, of course, that the lagislative branch should move slowly when propositions are made for creating new offices, and that none should be created unless the best interests of the state are conserved thereby. But it is a fact beyond dispute that no one has ever examined the records referred to in this department without becoming convinced of the necessity for their preservation for the uses of the people centuries hence, and, as before stated, were the matter thoroughly understood by the law-making power of the Commonwealth, there would be but little doubt that provision would be made for the copying of all these records within the next ten years. With the force at hand constantly employed it must be expected that a quarter of a century hence the work will still be unfinished. A fire in the department would probably destroy these records, even though they were copied, and the loss entailed would be inestimable and irreparable. As soon as may be practicable the construction of vaults within which these records can be kept is earnestly advocated, and any unnecessary de-It is believed lay in making this provision can never be excused. that the only cause for the delay in constructing fire-proof vaults for them, and explain the delay as having been caused by circumstances that required Mr. Maclay and Col. Atlee to visit their families, the first named still remaining absent. The letter also contains a statement of their views upon various matters pertaining to the mission upon which they are about to enter. They suggest Samuel Weiser, a son of Conrad Weiser, the noted Indian missionary, as a proper person to notify the Indians of the desire to treat with them, and from his familiarity with their language and customs, to act as interpreter. The time and place for holding the treaty are mentioned, but nothing definite suggested, owing to the fact that the Continental Congress had likewise appointed commissioners to meet the Six Nations for the purpose of treating with them in relation to the lands of the northwest, beyond the limits of Pennsylvania, and it was deemed proper to permit the representatives of Congress to arrange for the meeting." Fort Stanwix, in the State of New York, was finally agreed upon as the place where the meeting should be held, and thither the commissioners on the part of Pennsylvania were directed to proceed. On the 25th of August, 1784, a committee of the General Assembly, having Indian affairs under consideration, made the following report:

"That weighty reasons have occurred in favor of the design for holding a conference with the Indians on the part of this State, and if under the present situation of Continental affairs that measure can be conducted on sure ground and without too unlimited an expense, it ought to take place and be rendered as effective as this House can make it, under whose auspices a foundation would thus be laid of essential and durable advantage to the public, by extending population, satisfying our officers and soldiers in regard to their donation lands and depreciation certificates, restoring that ancient, friendly and profitable intercourse with the Indians and guarding against all occasions of war with them."—Penna. Archives, Vol. X, page 316.

To aid the commissioners in their efforts to attain objects so worthy and laudable, the above report was accompanied by a resolution that authorized the Supreme Executive Council to expend $9,000 in the purchase of "such goods, merchandize and trinkets" as would be acceptable to the Indians, to be given them as part of the consideration in the event of a purchase being made. In pursuance of this resolution the council promptly ordered a warrant to be issued by the Treasurer in favor of the commissioners for the sum of £3,375, (equivalent in Pennsylvania currency to $9,100), to be expended by them in purchasing the necessary articles.*

^{*}For a list of the articles designated in the order see Colonial Records, Vol. XIV, page 186. After the negotiations at Fort Stanwix had been concluded the commissioners gave an obligation for an additional $1,000 in goods, to be delivered at Tioga. For this list see Penna. Archives, Vol. X, page 496.

²A.- 8--96

After a tedious and fatiguing journey, in which they met with a number of unexpected delays, the commissioners reached Fort Stanwix early in the month of October, where they found some of the tribes already assembled, and with them the commissioners of the Continental Congress. In a letter to President Dickinson, dated October 4, 1784, they announce their arrival, and state that the negotiations had already commenced, and while they would not venture an opinion as to final issue, they say the disposition of the Indians appeared to be favorable. The negotiations continued until the 23rd of the same month, and on that day ended in an agreement by which the Indian title to all the lands within the boundaries of the State that remained after the treaty of 1768 was extinguished. ans represented at the conference were the Mohawks, the Oneidas, the Onondagas, the Senecas, the Cayngas and the Tuscacoras. consideration fixed for the surrender of their rights was $5,000. deed is dated October 23, 1784, is signed by all the chiefs of the Six Nations and by the Continental commissioners as witnesses. boundaries of the territory ceded are thus described: "Beginning on the south side of the river Ohio, where the western boundary of the State of Pennsylvania crosses the said river, near Shingo's old town, at the mouth of Beaver creek, and thence by a due north line to the end of the forty-second and the beginning of the forty-third degrees of north latitude, thence by a due east line separating the fortysecond and the forty-third degrees of north latitude, to the east side of the east branch of the Susquehanna river, thence by the bounds of the late purchase made at Fort Stanwix, the fifth day of November, Anno Domini one thousand seven hundred and sixty-eight, as follows: 'Down the said east branch of Susquehanna, on the east side thereof, till it comes opposite to the mouth of a creek called by the Indians Awandac, and across the river, and up the said creek on the south side thereof, all along the range of hills called Burnet's hills by the English and by the Indians ———, on the north side of them, to the head of a creek which runs into the west branch of Susquehanna, which creek is by the Indians called Tyadaghton, but by the Pennsylvanians Pine creek, and down the said creek on the south side thereof to the said west branch of Susquehanna, thence crossing the said river, and running up the south side thereof, the several courses thereof, to the forks of the same river, which lies nearest to a place on the river Ohio, called Kittanning, and from the fork by a straight line to Kittanning aforesaid, and thence down the said river Ohio, by the several courses thereof to where said State of Pennsylvania crosses the same river, at the place of beginning.' After the commissioners had accomplished in so satisfactory a manner the object for which they had journeyed to Fort Stanwix, it became necessary to apppease the Western Indians, the Wyandots and the Delawares, who also claimed rights in the same lands. The same commissioners were therefore sent to Fort McIntosh, on the Ohio river, at the site of the present town of Beaver, where in January, 1785, they were successful in reaching an agreement with those Indians for the same lands. This deed, signed by the chiefs of both tribes, is dated January 21, 1785, and is in the same words (except as to the consideration money, which is $2,000) and recites the same boundaries as the deed signed at Fort Stanwix in the previous month of October.*

After the purchase of 1768 a disagreement arose between the proprietary government and the Indians as to whether the creek flowing into the west branch of the river Susquehanna and called in the deed "Tiadaghten," was intended for Lycoming creek or Pine The Indians said it was the former, and that the purchase only extended that far, the proprietaries claimed the latter stream to be the extent of the purchase, but in order to avoid any trouble that might arise from the dispute, it was wisely determined that no rights should be granted for lands west of Lycoming creek. determination, however, did not deter or prevent adventurous pioneers from entering upon and making settlements within the disputed territory, and from their persistency in so doing arose an interesting, not to say serious, condition of affairs to which reference will The commissioners at Fort Stanwix were inagain be made. structed to ascertain definitely from the Indians which of the two streams they meant by "Tyadaghton." They then admitted that it was Pine creek, being the largest emptying into the west branch of the Susquehanna.

The Indian claim of right to the soil of Pennsylvania, within its charter limits, had thus in a period of a little more than one hundred years ceased to exist. A glance at a map of the State will show that within the magnificent domain that comprises the purchase of 1784 are to be found at the present day the counties of Tioga, Potter, McKean, Warren, Crawford, Venango, Forest, Clarion, Elk, Jefferson, Cameron, Butler, Lawrence and Mercer, and parts of the counties of Bradford, Clinton, Clearfield, Indiana, Armstrong, Allegheny, Beaver and Erie.* This large and important division of our great Commonwealth, now teeming with population and wealth, the abiding place of a noble civilization, and containing within its boundaries thousands upon thousands of homes of comfort and many of elegance and luxury, fertile valleys to reward the labor of the husband-

LANDS EAST OF THE ALLEGHENY RIVER AND CONE-WANGO CREEK.

The General Assembly of the State did not delay in enacting laws which would open to settlers and purchasers that part of the late acquisition that had not been otherwise appropriated. As a matter of fact, in anticipation of the purchase, an act was passed on the 1st day of April, 1784, in which it was provided that as soon as the Indians were "satisfied for the unpurchased lands," the supreme executive council should give official information thereof to the surveyor general, who was then to appoint district surveyors to survey all such lands within the purchase as should "be found fit for cultiva-The tracts were to contain not more than five hundred nor less than two hundred acres each, and were to be numbered on a general draft of each district. When a certain number of lots were surveyed they were to be sold at public auction, the purchaser having the privilege of paying one moity at the time of purchase and receiving a credit of two years for the other moity. The mode of disposing of the lands thus indicated was soon changed by subsequent leg-By an act passed December 21, 1784, to amend the act of April 1st, the provisions of the law for sales by public auction and the giving of credit were repealed. Section 6 of the act provided that the land office should be open on the 1st day of May, 1785, to receive applications for lands at the rate of £30* for every hundred acres of the same, and that the survey of an application should not contain more than one thousand acres, with the usual allowance of six per centum for highways. This act was intended to apply to all lands within the purchase except the lands north and west of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers and Conewango creek (which as already mentioned, had been appropriated for the redemption of depreciation certificates and for the donations of land to the soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line), and the disputed territory between Lycoming and Pine creeks. By section 7, a warrant issued in pursuance of the act was not descriptive, and was not confined to any particular place but could be located on any vacant land, not within the excepted districts, that the applicant might select. Sections 8, 9 and 10 of the act provide for the persons who occupied lands between Lycoming and Pine creeks, in violation of the proprietary man-The situation of these settlers was peculiar. When the disagreement in regard to the purchase lines of the purchase of 1768 occurred, the proprietaries, always extremely anxious to avoid giving offense to the Indians, decided to withhold the territory between the two streams from sale and settlement until the differences could be properly adjusted by mutual agreement. many applications for land west of Lycoming creek were on file, surveys would not be accepted, and at the same time stringent orders were issued protesting against persons making settlement beyond that stream, and warning those already there to depart. fiance of warnings, protests and proclamations, however, many sturdy, self-reliant men persisted in occupying the forbidden ground, where they found themselves beyond the bounds of lawful authority, and could not expect to receive encouragement or protection from the proprietary government. But with the energy and courage common to pioneer settlers they at once began the work of subduing the wilderness and building homes for their families, and from accounts that have come down to us, the little community, if it did not live in luxury, was at least able to earn a subsistence that was not meagre in quantity, whatever may have been its quality. without law or government, the members of the community were compelled by the necessities of their situation and surroundings to adopt a system of government of their own, the details of which are not fully known. All, however, were under solemn obligations to support and defend their agreement for mutual support and protec-They called themselves Fair-Play Men, and it is known that annually they elected three of their number to constitute a court, which held stated meetings to dispense justice. To this tribunal all disputes and controversies were referred for settlement, and from its decisions there was no appeal. A stranger coming among them was obliged to appear before the court and promise under oath to submit to the laws of the community. If he did this he could remain, take possession of unoccupied land, and receive assistance in building his cabin. If he would not take the obligation, he was quickly notified to absent himself without delay, which he usually did, without awaiting the call of a committee, whose methods of expulsion might be none too gentle. Many of these brave frontiersmen served in the army during the Revolutionary War, and section 8 of the act recited that by reason of their services as soldiers they merited the "pre-emption of their respective plantations." Sections 9 and 10 of the same act allowed a pre-emption to all settlers and their legal representatives who had settled on the lands between the two streams prior to the year 1780, limiting each claim to 300 acres, providing that the application should be made and the consideration paid on or before November 1, 1785. It will be remembered that the time fixed by the act of December 21, 1784, for the land office to be opened to receive applications was May 1, 1785. Before that day arrived, however, the Legislature passed another act which, in many respects, changed the policy previously pursued in disposing of unappropriated lands. This act became a law on the 8th day of April. 1785, and with it came the practice, as provided in the act, of numbering all warrants for land in the last purchase to the east of the Allegheny river and Conewango creek, a change in practice that has always been regarded as a valuable improvement on the old sys-The act is entitled "An act to provide further regulations. whereby to secure fair and equal proceedings in the land office, and the surveying of lands." It was believed that when the office was opened on the day fixed by the law, numerous applications would be made at the same time, and that preference would necessarily be given to some persons to the disadvantage of others, and thereby In order to prevent any one from profiting cause dissatisfaction. by such preference, it was enacted in Section 2 of the act that the priority of all warrants to be granted on applications received during the first ten days after the opening of the office should be determined by a lottery to be drawn under the supervision of the Secretary of the Land Office. Not more than one thousand acres were to be included in one application, and the warrants were to be numbered "according to the decision of the lottery." For conducting the lottery the section contains minute directions. All applications made after the expiration of ten days were to have priority according to the order in which they came into the hands of the Secretary, and were to The other sections of the act relate be numbered accordingly. mainly to the duties of the surveyor general and the deputy surveyors to be by him appointed, and the way in which surveys were to be made and returned. It also prescribes the fees to be received by the officers of the land office and the deputy surveyors, and attaches the territory east of the Allegheny river and Conewango creek to Northumberland county, a part of which county it remained until Lycoming county was formed in 1795, when it became part of that The remaining portion of the purchase was attached to Westmoreland county, and so continued until Allegheny was formed in 1788, when it was included in the boundary of that county. applications received during the first ten days from the opening of the office were listed and numbered, placed in the lottery wheel and drawn therefrom in the manner provided by the second section of the They numbered five hundred and sixty-four, and warrants for that number of tracts were issued and received a number that corresponded with the number drawn from the wheel. These warrants were called "Northumberland County Lottery Warrants," and under that designation are yet carried on the warrant registers of the office. They could be, and were, located in such localities within the purchase east of the Allegheny river as the owners might select, except on a reservation of one thousand acres at the forks of Sinnemahoning creek, for which Gen. James Potter held a pre-emption.

The surveyor general had authority to appoint deputy surveyors, and to fix the number, extent and boundaries of the districts to which they were to be assigned. The territory was divided into eighteen districts and a deputy surveyor appointed for each. These districts were numbered consecutively, beginning with No. 1, on the Allegheny river, and running eastward to No. 18, which extended to the north branch of the Susquehanna in the northeast corner of the purchase. This arrangement of the districts continued until after the year 1790, when a change was made by the surveyor general. The number of districts was then reduced to six, and were numbered westward from district No. 1, beginning at the mouth of Lycoming creek. In the new arrangement John Adlum was appointed deputy surveyor for district No. 1, John Broadhead for No. 2, John Canan for No. 3, James Hunter for No. 4, William P. . Brady for No. 5 and Enion Williams for No. 6, on the Allegheny river.* In 1793, John Adlum, whose surveys were principally along the northern line of the State, was succeeded by William Ellis, and Enion William by John Broadhead. After the drawing of the lottery warrants the business of the land office does not appear to have been very pressing. It would seem that at the price fixed by the act of December, 1784—£30 per hundred, or 80 cents an acre purchasers were not numerous. The records show that from the time of the drawing and issuing of the lottery warrants in May. 1785, down to the year 1792, not more than four hundred warrants were granted for these lands, and among these warrants were many to religious and educational institutions issued under various acts of endowment. There were thirty-two to Dickinson collegetwenty-eight of 300 acres each, and four of 400 acres each, making in all 7,000 acres; the Episcopal Academy had thirty-three warrants -thirty-two of 300 acres each and one of 400 acres, making 10,000 acres; the Lutheran congregation, of Philadelphia ten warrants of 500 acres each, making 5,000 acres; the Pittsburg Academy, ten warrants of 500 acres each, making 5,000 acres; the Washington Academy, ten warrants of 500 each, making 5,000 acres; the Reading Academy, seven warrants—three of 1,000 acres each and four of 500 acres each-making 5,000 acres, and Franklin College thirty-three warrants of 300 acres each and one of 100 acres, making 10,000 acres—making in the aggregate 112 warrants for 52,000 acres of land.

It had now become apparent to the authorities that the price of land was too high to induce investments of money in them, and that the General Assembly must fix a lower rate to promote sales. Benjamin Franklin, the president of the Supreme Executive Council, under date of February 23, 1787, addressed a letter to that body in which he says: "We are convinced that it will be of advantage to the State to lower the price of land within the late Indian purchase; only eight warrants have been taken out of for lands these six months passed."* The Legislature accordingly passed an act, October 3, 1788, to reduce the price from the rate of £30 per hundred acres to £20. This rate was to be charged after March 1, 1789, and was a reduction from the old rate of 80 cents an acre to 53\frac{1}{2} cents an acre. This rate continued until April 3, 1792, but, contrary to expectations, did not have the effect of increasing sales, and, therefore, brought little or no change in the business of the office. By another act, passed April 3, 1792, the price was again reduced. The rate fixed by this act was £5, or $13.33\frac{1}{3}, for each hundred acres, and at this rate sales almost astonishing in extent were made, and the years 1792-93-94 proved to be noted and important years for disposing of unappropriated lands. The low price at which lands could now be bought, and the alluring prospect of a large increase in their value, undoubtedly induced many large purchasers to enter their applications. The applications received at the land office were for a large number of tracts, and in the course of the years named more than five thousand warrants of 900 and 1,000 each, covering almost 5,000,000 acres, were granted for lands north and west of the purchase line of 1768 and east of the Allegheny river. These were all numbered in consecutive order, as required by the act of April, 1785, and were sent to the deputy surveyors of the six districts to be executed. They were issued in the names of a comparatively small number of persons, but the holdings, as a rule, were very large. While it would be tedious to give the names of all the holders of these warrants, generally called "late purchase warrants," it may not prove uninteresting to mention a few of those whose purchases were more than usually large, if only to show that a spirit of speculation might have existed in those days, even as it does at the present time. The first to be mentioned will be the warrants issued in the names of Wilhem Willink, Nicholas Van Staphorst, Christian Van Eeghan, Pieter Stadnitski, Hendrick Vollenhoven and Ruter Jan Schimmelpenninck. These gentlemen were merehants of the city of Amsterdam, Holland. In the land history of Pennsylvania they are known as the "Holland Land Company," and through agents they invested a large amount of money in the purchase of land in the purchase of 1784. The warrant registers show that in the three years, 1792-93-94, they paid for and received 1,105 warrants of 900 acres each, aggregating 995,400 acres of land lying east of the Allegheny river. These warrants were divided among the deputy surveyors of the six districts. James Wilson was another large owner of warrants, the number held by him being 510, of 900 acres each, making 451,000 acres. Herman Le Roy and Jan Lincklean, A. Z., also of Amsterdam, 303 warrants of 900 acres each, making 272,700 acres. John Nicholson 300 warrants of 1,000 acres each, making 300,000 acres. Thomas M. Willing, 311 warrants of 1,000 acres each, making 311,000 acres. George Meade, 306 warrants of 1,000 acres each, making 306,000 aeres. Robert Gilmore, 200 warrants of 1,000 acres each, making 200,000 acres. Samuel Wallis, 100 warrants of 1,000 acres each, making 100,000 acres. William Burgbam, 125 warrants of 1,000 acres each, making 125,000. Robert Morris, 185 warrants, 141 of 1,000 acres each, and 44 of 500 acres each-making 163,000 acres. The magnitude of the purchases made by a few individuals is here clearly indicated. There were, however, other large purchasers, such as Robert Blackwell, John Olden, Charles Willing, Philip Nicklin and Robert Griffith, James Strawbridge, Jeremiah Parker and others whose names we are obliged to omit. The surveys generally were carefully and correctly made and, considering the extent of territory covered by them, and the large interests involved, no great amount of litigation from conflicting locations afterwards grew out of defective or careless work by the surveyor, as was too often the case with surveys made in other sections of the State. In 1817 the price of the lands was again changed to 26% cents an acre, to correspond with the price in the older purchases. At the same time warrants were made descriptive, and have since been carried in the warrant registers by counties. The surveys made on the numbered warrants did not appropriate all the land within the limits to which they were restricted, and since then many warrants have been granted in all the counties erected from the territory that in 1785 was made to form a part of the county of Northumberland.

Lands North and East of the Ohio and Allegheny Rivers and Conewango Creek.

After the surveys of the tracts to be sold for the redemption of depreciation certificates and the donation lots to be given to the soldiers of the Pennsylvania line had been made, there remained in this part of the purchase a large surplus of lands to be otherwise appropriated. The legislature, on the 3d of April, 1792, passed an act for the sale of these lands entitled "An act for the sale of vacant lands within this Commonwealth." This act differs from all previous laws for disposing of the public lands, by providing that they should only be offered for sale to such persons as would "cultivate, improve and settle the same, or cause the same to be cultivated, improved and settled." The price fixed was £7 10s in Pennsylvania currency, for every hundred acres, or in other words, 20 cents an acre, and the warrants were limited to 400 acres each. The surveyor general was authorized to divide the territory offered for sale into proper and convenient districts and appoint deputy surveyors, who were to give the customary bond for the faithful performance of their duties. They were to execute warrants according to their priority, but "not to survey any tract actually settled and improved prior to the date of the entry of such warrant with the deputy, except to the owner of such settlement and improvement." The territory was divided into eleven districts and a deputy surveyor appointed for each; Thomas Reese, for district No. 1, William Powers for No. 2, Benjamin Stokely for No. 3. Thomas Stokely for No. 4. John Moore for No. 5 Samuel Nicholson for No. 6, John McCool for No. 7, Stephen Gapen for No. 8, Jonathan and Daniel Leet for Nos. 9 and 10. John Hoge for No. 11.*

By section 8 of the act, on application being made to the deputy surveyor of the proper district by any person who had made an actual settlement and improvement, that officer, on being paid the legal fees, was required to survey the lines of the tract, not exceeding 400 acres, to which such person may have become entitled by virtue of his settlement. Many such surveys were returned to the land office and constituted pre-emptions to persons for whom they were made. Some of the tracts thus returned still remain unpaid, as a glance at the land lieu docket of the land office will show. By section 9 no warrant or survey made in pursuance of the act was to vest title to the lands unless the grantee had, "prior to the date of such warrant made, or caused to be made, or should within the space of two years next after the date of the same, make, or cause to be made, an actual settlement thereon, by clearing, fencing and cultivating at least two acres for every hundred acres contained in one survey, erecting thereon a messuage for the habitation of man, and residing or causing a family to reside thereon, for the space of five years next following his first settling of the same, if he or she shall so long live." In default of such actual settlement and residence the right was forfeited, and new warrants, reciting the original warrants and the lack of compliance with the requirements of the act, could be granted to other actual settlers. It was provided. however, "that if any actual settler or any grantee in any such original or succeeding warrant, shall by force of arms of the enemies of the United States, be prevented from making such actual settlement, or be driven therefrom and shall persist in his endeavors to make such actual settlement as aforesaid, then, in either case, he and his heirs shall be entitled to have and to hold the said lands in the same manner as if the actual settlement had been made and continued." Under the provisions of this act many surveys, as already stated, were returned for actual settlers, and many warrants were taken out immediately after its passage. The warrants were for 400 acres each, and immense numbers of them in fictitious names, in which great families of Inks, Pims, etc., appear, were taken out by a few individuals. For instance the Holland Land Company, previously mentioned, again appear in the territory west of the Allegheny. That company alone took out 1,1 warrants representing 464,800 acres of land, and making the entire purchases of the company from the State amount to more than 1,500,000 acres. John Nicholson was another purchaser who held a large number of these warrants. To the "Pennsylvania Population Company" he assigned 100,000 acres lying principally in the present county of Erie, and proposed to assign 250,000 acres lying along Beaver creek and the western line of the State to another of his land schemes called the "North American Land Company." The warrants all contained the actual settlement clause, but not any of the large owners of warrants made the slightest pretence of complying with it. Owing to the disturbed condition of the western border at the time it was impossible to do so. A state of war existed with the western Indians. The United States forces had met with serious reverses in the defeat of Harmer and St. Clair in 1791, and it was not until after Wayne's treaty, in December, 1795, gave peace and safety to the borders that settlers with their families could enter upon those lands free from the fear and danger of Indian incursions.

But with the settling of the Indian disorders and the return of cace, there soon came other troubles, with expensive and vexatious litigation, to annoy and harass settlers and warantees by the uncertainty that was cast upon their titles. This uncertainty grew out of differences of opinion in relation to the construction the two years' clause of the law requiring actual settlement, after the termination of the Indian hostilities that had prevented such settlement from being made should receive. The opposite views held by those interested in titles are clearly stated in Sergeants Land Laws, page 98: "On one side it was contended that the conditions of actual settlement and residence, required by the act, was dispensed with, on account of the prevention for two years after the date of the warrant* by Indian hostilities; and that the warrant holder was not bound to do anything further, but was entitled to a patent. On the other side it was insisted that the right under the warrant was forfeited, at the expiration of two years, without a settlement, and that actual settlers might then enter on such tracts and hold them by making a settlement. On this and other constructions. numbers of persons entered on the lands of warrantees and claimed to hold under the act, as settlers, after a forfeiture." The authorities of the State at the time—1796 to 1800—held to the first opinion. and by the advice of Attorney General Ingersoll, the Board of Property devised what was called a "prevention certificate," which set forth the fact of the inability of the warantee or settler to make the required settlement. This certificate was to be signed by two justices and on its presentation, properly signed, the land officers freely granted a patent for the land described. Under prevention certificates of this kind many patents were granted. The Holland Land Company received more than one thousand and John Field. William Crammond and James Gibson, in trust for the use of the Pennsylvania Population Company, more than eight hundred. These patents all contained a recital of the prevention certificate, as follows: "And also in consideration of it having been made to appear to the Board of Property that the said (name of warrantee) was by force of arms of the enemies of the United States prevented from making settlement as is required by the ninth section (act of April 3, 1792), and the assignees of the said (warrantee) had persisted in their endeavors to make such settlement," etc. With a change of adminstration in October, 1799, there followed a change of policy. The new authorities did not regard the policy and proceedings of the former Board of Property binding, and the further issuing of patents on prevention certificates was refused. In the meantime, the contentions between the owners of warrants and settlers were carried into the courts, where a like difference of opinion in regard to the rights of the contending parties under the act of 1792 soon manifested itself, the judges disagreeing as widely in their construction of the ninth section as the parties in interest. It was only after years of exciting and troublesome litigation, and the enactment of a number of laws by the legislature of the State to facilitate an adjustment of the contentions that titles became settled and owners felt secure in their possessions. It may be said that while the judges of the courts often differed in their opinions on the points at issue, the litigation ended generally in favor of the holders of the warrants. The Holland Land Company, being composed of foreigners, could appeal to the courts of the United States. In one case carried to the Supreme Court, the company was actually absolved from making the settlement prescribed by the ninth section. Chief Justice Marshall, holding that a warrant for a tract of land under the act of 1792 "to a person who, by force of arms of the enemies of the United States, was prevented from settling and improving the said land, and from residing thereon from the date of the warrant until the 1st of January, 1796, but who, during the said period, persisted in his endeavors to make such settlement and residence, vests in such grantee a fee simple in said land."* That the uncertainty in regard to land titles during these years did much to retard the growth and prosperity of this northwestern section of the State cannot be doubted; but, under the influence of better conditions, brought about by the adjustment of land rights and the allaying of local strife, it afterward made marvelous strides forward in the march of progress and improvement.

The dispositions made of the unsold depreciation and the undrawn donation lots in this part of the purchase, were fully treated of in former papers, and, therefore, need no further notice. It may not, however, be amiss to say a word in relation to the purchase of the Erie triangle, an acquisition that was of vast importance to Pennsylvania by reason of the outlet of Lake Erie. The triangle was claimed by the States of New York and Massachusetts, but was ceded by both states, in the years 1781 and 1785 to the United States. The Pennsylvania authorities, anticipating its possession. had, through a treaty made at Fort McIntosh by General St. Clair. Colonel Harmer and others, secured a deed from the Indians by which their claim of title was extinguished. This deed, signed by the chiefs of the Six Nations, is dated January 9, 1789, and the consideration paid was $2,000. It was then, by a deed dated March 3, 1792, ceded by the United States to Pennsylvania. This deed is signed by George Washington, President, and Thomas Jefferson. Secretary of State. In 1790, Andrew Ellicott made a survey of the triangle and found it to contain 202,287 acres, and the purchase money paid to the United States, at the rate of seventy-five cents an acre, amounted to $151,640.25. This purchase having been completed before the passage of the act of April 3, 1792, the lands within it, except the reservations, were sold under the provisions of that act. Before the completion of the purchase, John Nicholson had made application for the entire tract, and probably held a larger number of warrants for lands within its boundaries than any other individual.

The Reservations North and West of the Ohio and Allegheny Rivers and Conewango Creek.

In the act of March 12, 1783, setting apart the depreciation lands, two reservations for the use of the State were made—one of "three thousand acres, in an oblong of not less than one mile in depth from the Allegheny and Ohio rivers, and extending up and down the said rivers, from opposite Fort Pitt, so far as may be necessary to include the same;" and the others "three thousand acres on the Ohio, and on both sides of Beaver creek, including Fort Mackintosh." There was also reserved on Lake Erie for the use of the State, the peninsula of Presque Isle, a tract extending eight miles along the shores of the lake and three miles in breadth, and another tract of 2,000 acres on the lake at the mouth of Harbor creek; and also tracts at the mouth of French creek, at Fort LeBoeuf and at the mouth of Conewango creek. For the purpose of raising an additional sum by the sale of town lots to be used in paying the debts of the State, the President of the Supreme Executive Council was authorized by an act passed the 11th day of September, 1787, to cause a town to be laid out on the reservation opposite Fort Pitt. The tract, except 312 acres within its boundaries, was accordingly surveyed into town and out lots and sold at public auction. regular lots of the town, as laid down in the survey, were in dimensions 60 by 240 feet, while the out lots contained from five to ten acres. The part containing 312 acres, not included in the plan of the town, was patented to James O'Harra on the 5th day of May, 1789. This town has grown into the large and flourishing city of Allegheny. By another act, passed September 28, 1791, the Governor was given power to authorize the Surveyor General to cause a part of the reservation at the mouth of Beaver creek, to be laid out in town lots, "on or near the ground where the old French town stood," in such manner as commissioners, to be appointed by the Governor should direct. By this act 200 acres were to be surveyed into town lets, and 1,000 acres, adjoining on the upper side, into out lots to contain not less than five acres, nor more than ten acres. Daniel Leet, a deputy surveyor, who had previously surveyed district No. 2, of the depreciation lands and one of the donation districts, was employed to lay out these town and out lots, and his survey of the town and out lots was confirmed by an act passed in March, 1793. The same act directed the Governor to proceed to make sale of the lots and grant conveyances for them, in the manner prescribed by the act authorizing the laying out of the town. town was called Beaver-town, and when the county of Beaver was erected in 1800 was made the county seat. The act erecting the county appropriated 500 acres of the reservation for the use of such school or academy as might thereafter be established in the town. The town then called Beaver was incorporated into a borough in 1802, and the borough of Rochester and Bridgewater, on opposite sides of the creek, also occupy parts of this reservation.

The towns of Erie, Franklin, Waterford and Warren were established by an act passed on the 18th day of April, 1795. Of the large reservation on Lake Erie, at Presque Isle, the Governor was authorized to appoint two commissioners to survey 1,600 acres for town lots and 3,400, adjoining thereto, for out lots, with such streets. alleys, lanes and reservations for public uses as the commissioners should direct. The town lots were to contain not more than onethird of an acre,* the out lots not more than five acres, the reserva tions for public uses not to exceed twenty acres, and the town was to be called Erie. After the survey of the town, made by General William Irvine and Andrew Ellicott, was filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the Governor was directed to sell at public auction one-third of the town lots and one-third of the out lots to the highest bidders, and grant patents to the purchasers upon the condition that within two years they respectively should "build a house, at least sixteen feet square, and contain at least one brick or stone chinmey," on each lot purchased, the patent not to be issued until after the expiration of two years, and then only on proof that the condition of the sale had been complied with. In addition to the surveys of the town and out lots, the act provided that three lots—one of sixty acres on the southern side of the harbor, another of thirty on the peninsula, and a third of 100 acres also on the peninsular—should be surveyed for the "use of the United States in erecting and maintaining forts, magazines and dock yards thereon." Of the tract at the mouth of French creek, 300 acres for town lots and 700 acres for out lots were to be surveyed for the town of Franklin; and of the tract at the month of Conewango creek, 300 acres for town lots and 700 acres for out lots were to be surveyed for the town of Warren. At the time the act providing for the laying out of these towns became a law a settlement had been made at Fort LeBoenf. Andrew Ellicott had surveyed and laid out a town, and his draft of the town was accepted and confirmed by the Legislature. It was provided, however, that in addition to the town lots of Ellicott's survey, 500 acres should be surveyed for out lots and that the town should be called Waterford. The size of the town and out lots for Franklin and Warren, the out lots for Waterford and the provisions for streets, lanes, alleys and reservations for public use—the reservations reduced to ten acres-were the same as for the town of Erie, as were also the regulations for the sale of the lots. At Waterford a number of settlers who had built houses were given a right of preemption to the lots on which they setttled. A subsequent act. passed April 11, 1799, provided that surveys should be made of the reserved tracts adjoining Erie, Franklin, Warren and Waterford, not laid out in town or out lots, into lots not to exceed 150 acres in each, to be sold by commissioners, one of whom was to reside in each town. The tracts were to be graded in quality, and no sale was to be made at less than four dollars an acre for land of the first quality; three dollars for the second quality and two dollars for the taird quality, and purchasers, before title could vest in them, were required within three years from the date of their purchases to make an actual settlement on the land "by clearing, fencing and cultivating at least two acres for every fifty contained in one survey and erect on each lot or tract a messuage for the habitation of man and reside thereon for the space of five years following their first settlement of the same." The same act required 500 acres in each of the reserved tracts to be survyed for the use of schools or acadamies, and provision was made for the appraisement of the residue of the town and out lots, and for their sale by the commissioner "esiding in the town. It was also provided in this act that the reserved lot in the town of Erie, at the mouth of Cascade creek, was to be sold at public sale, on consideration of settlement and improvement, provided it brought fifty dollars an acre. By an act passed February 19, 1800, the clause of the act that required settlement and improvement of lots was repealed. The other reservation of 2,000 acres in the Erie triangle, at the mouth of Harbor creek, was donated by an act of the legislature to General William Irvine to indemnify him for the loss of Montour's island (now called Neville island), in the Ohio river below the city of Pittsburg. General Irvine held the island under a Pennsylvania patent, but was divested of his title by a judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States in an ejectment suit brought against him by a party who claimed ownership under a Virginia right, which, under the agreement between Pennsylvania and Virginia for settling the southwestern boundary dispute, was held by the court to be good.

BOUNDARY LINE AND BOUNDARY LINE MONUMENTS

The act of 1887 gave the Secretary of Internal Affairs the right to examine the boundary line mounments that mark the lines between Pennsylvania and the States of New York, Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland and Delaware. It also authorizes him to co-operate with the proper authorities in the states named in the adjusting of the line and the resetting and repairing of the monuments. In the State of New York triennial examinations are made under the direction of the State Surveyor and Engineer, and it has been the custom of the Secretary of Internal Affairs to appoint a civil engineer to act in conjunction with the New York officer in the examination of the monuments on the line between New York and Pennsylvania. An examination was thus made in the fall of 1896, commencing at the Delaware river and passing over the entire line through to the western extremity of the eastern and western lines, and thence to Lake Erie.

An examination was made of each monument and a detailed report made as to its condition. The proceedings incident to the appointment, the work of examination and the detailed report of the examiners are submitted herewith. The report has been filed among the records of the department.

State Engineer and Surveyor. Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Monuments marking this line are divided into five classes.

FIRST CLASS—HIGHWAY MONUMENTS.

These are placed at highways intersecting or following the boundary line. Milestones placed alongside highways are of this class. These monuments are four and one-half feet long; the top is dressed rectangular, twelve inches by six inches, and at right angles across the center, parallel with the edges, are cut two quarter inch grooves; the upper end of each side to the depth of twelve inches is also dressed, and upon one broad (north) face are cut the letters "N. Y.," and upon the other (south) the letters "Pa." The milestones of this class are further marked with the numebr of the original mile monument and the letter "M." These monuments weigh from 375 to 500 pounds each. In setting monuments of this class, the longer groove was placed in the direction of the boundary.

SECOND, THIRD AND FOURTH CLASSES.

Monuments of the second, third and fourth classes are four feet long, the top is dressed six inches square, and the upper end of each side is also dressed to the depth of six inches. These monuments weigh from 170 to 220 pounds each.

Monuments of the second class are placed at the original mile points which are not marked by monuments of the first or fourth classes. Across the top at right angles and parallel with the faces, are cut two quarter-inch grooves; on opposite faces are cut the letters "N. Y.," (north) and "Pa." (south), and upon a third (east face) the number of the original monument with the letter "M" under it.

Monuments of the third class are similar in all respects to monuments of the second class, with the exception that the number upon the third face is omitted except in a few instances. They are placed at railway and river intersections and at such other points as were deemed necessary. Monuments of the second and third classes are set so that the faces containing the leters "N. Y." and "Pa." are parallel with the boundary.

Monuments of the fourth class have cut.diagonally across their top, two quarter-inch grooves, and they are set so that one of the diagonal grooves is in the direction of the boundary. The faces are specially lettered. These monuments are generally milestones marking the town or county corners; the face of the stone toward the town or county is marked with the initial letter of the name.

FIFTH CLASS.

Monuments of this class are placed to mark the astronomical stations of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, occupied in 1877 and 1879. Each monument is a block of granite of the general dimensions of twelve inches square and eighteen inches or more deep. The top is dressed and the station point is marked upon it in the center by a cross (X). Upon the top are also cut the name of the station, the letters "U. S. C." and "G. S.," and the year in which the station was occupied.

The monuments of this class were not examined as they are all buried beneath the surface.

Considering the open and exposed places in which many of the monuments stand, they were generally found to be in good condition; some of them were more or less chipped at the corners and sides, but not to a sufficint extent to effect their usefulness; some have heaved from one to twelve inches above their normal position; one is missing; one has been destroyed by fire and one has been maliciously broken.

The great majority of the monuments which show an excessive up heaval stand in wet, swampy ground, and no special means were taken in the setting of these monuments to prevent an upheaval due to the action of frost. To attempt to reset every monument which has heaved to any extent, would be unnecessarily expensive, and productive of no good result, for while many of them have heaved, yet they stand firmly and answer the required purpose. It is suggested that only such monuments as have heaved eight inches or more, be reset, and that in the resetting, where the ground is wet, concrete be placed at the bottom and aroundthe monument to within a foot of the surface of the ground. This course seems necessary because some of the monuments which were reset in 1893 with the greatest care, again show an upheaval of more than eight inches.

The examination of the line through the woods involves more time time and labor at each successive examination, owing to the fact that the cutting, which was made when the line was run and the monuments set, and which was discernible and easily followed on the previous examination, has now grown up to bushes and cannot be distinguished from other parts of the woods. A most careful scrutiny failed to disclose any evidence that trees along the line had been blazed by the surveying party of 1884; in a few instances line trees were found marked, probably by the lumbermen, but there was usually such an uncertainty attached to them, that they served but little purpose, and at times caused confusion. There were many occasions where hours would have been saved by the existence of some line trees.

There seems to be no practical way in which this defect can be remedied. The suggestion has heretofore been made, that along along those portions of the line which are wooded, a clearing of ten or twelve feet wide be made, and that where the woods are apt to be felled for timber, and not for cultivation, mounds or signals be erected. The carrying out of such a suggestion could only be done at a considerable cost and the benefit to be derived could only be but a temporary one.

In the immediate vicinity of each monument, trees had been hacked as witnesses; in some cases these have been cut down purposely, it seems to us, by the lumbermen, and in other cases the witness hacks have been almost obliterated by age.

We have endeavored to make the detailed description of the location of the monuments, which follows, as definite and complete as possible; the description of some has been changed to meet new conditions, and that of others been more fully given; so that on future examinations the time consumed should be considerably reduced, and the expenses proportionately lessened.

New monuments are required at the following places:

Milestone 42; the monument now marking this point has been broken off two and a half feet from the top.

On the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, just east of Waverly; the monument marking this point has been broken off about one foot below the surface.

At the corner of Allegheny and Steuben counties, New York; this monument has entirely disappeared.

On the Olean. Oswego & Eastern Railroad; this road has recently been built across the line.

On the highway leading fom North East to State Line; this monument has been destroyed by fire.

The following monuments should be reset: Nos. 73, 74, 100, 169, 183, and 250.

Engineer for Pennsylvania
CAMPBELL W. ADAMS,
Engineer for New York.

BOUNDARY LINE BETWEEN THE STATES OF DELAWARE, MARYLAND AND PENNSYLVANIA.

The reports of the commissioners from the counties of Delaware and Chester, on the boundary line monuments, which were made prior to the repeal of the law authorizing annual examinations by the commissioners of the boundary line monuments, indicated that many disputes existed as to the exact location of the line of the Circle of New Castle, a circular line that fixes the limits between the State of Delaware and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It seems that frequent difficulties arose in regard to the taxation of property, as it was impossible to tell in which state the property along said circular line was located. It, therefore, became desirable that the line be accurately fixed, and the legislature of Pennsylvania, in 1889, passed a bill authorizing the appointment of a commission to act with a similiar commission appointed by the State of Delaware, to "examine, survey and re-establish the boundary line that separates this Commonwealth from the State of Delaware, and when said line shall have been properly relocated, to mark its location by the erection of enduring monuments."

Conforming to the requirements of this act, a commission was appointed by the Governor of Pennsylvania, and a similar act was passed by the legislature of Delaware and a commission also appointed to represent that state, and under the commission so constituted the circle of New Castle was again resurveyed. The commission seems, however, to have exceeded somewhat the specific authority given it by the act of the legislature, for the reason that on account of the alleged errors in the original location of the Circle they could not make a perfect circle conform to the descriptions as originally given. They, therefore, made a compound circle, or arc of a circle, and among other changes made, recommended that the gore of land running down between the Circle of New Castle and the eastern line of Maryland, containing about 800 acres, should be ceded to the State of Delaware. The report of the commission is on file in the department, but it has never been approved by an act of the legislature of this State, nor, so far as is known here, of the State of Delaware.

It has heretofore been suggested in the annual reports of this department that if the line established by this commission, as indicating the location of the Circle of New Castle and the limits of the two States is to be adopted, an act of the legislature confirming the report is necessary. It is now recommended that the legislature carefully consider the changes made, or attempted to be made, by the commission, and that a bill be presented and passed approving the action of the commission; providing always that it is the opinion of the legislature that the Circle of New Castle should be located as recommended by the commission and that the territory referred to should be ceded to the State of Delaware. This action seems necessary for the reason above given, that the work of the commission is not final until concurred in by both states interested and then confirmed by an act of Congress.

The recommendations heretofore made are again pressed upon the legislature for action at the session of 1897. Prompt action is made the more important on account of the decision of Judge Hemphill, of Chester county, in regard to the right of Pennsylvania to take a tract of land which, before the survey made by the commission referred to was in the State of Delaware, but by reason of the survey made and the monuments erected by them, is now within the limits of Pennsylvania. The court having jurisdiction of the matter determined that no matter what might have been done by the commission appointed by the act of 1889, the changes it made in the location of the line could have no binding force on either of the states concerned until their work had been approved by the legislatures of the two states and confirmed by act of Congress. work of the commission, therefore, will have no value to either state and the large amount of money expended in the relocation of the Circle of New Castle will be substantially thrown away unless the legislatures of the two states, and Congress shall take action in the matter.

The decision of the court in the case referred to is submitted herewith, both on account of the question of law passed upon, and also for the purpose of giving to the public through this report much historical data on the treaties, agreements and laws which originally led to the establishment of the circular line between Delaware and Pennsylvania.

JUDGE HEMPHILES OPINION.

vs.

THOMAS E. CROSSAN,

In the Court of Common Pleas of Chester County.

In Equity. No. 298.

The plaintiff seeks to have made perpetual the preliminary injunction granted in this case to restrain the defendant, a collector of county taxes for the township of London Britain, Chester county, Pa., from selling certain personal property of the plaintiff seized by him to secure the payment of taxes assessed upon a tract of land owned by the plaintiff, for the reason that said land is situate in White Clay Creek Hundred, New Castle county, Delaware, and not in said township of London Britain.

The question thus presented is: Is the assessed land within the confines of the State of Delaware or the State of Pennsylvania?

And as the location of the boundary line between said states is necessarily involved, the defendant denies the jurisdiction of this court "to hear and determine the questions raised by the bill of complainant" and answer. Have we then jurisdiction of the cause?

This is not a suit between the States to determine a disputed boundary, for boundary lines can only be fixed and established by agreement of the states, with the consent of Congress or by legal proceedings in the courts of the United States. Nor is either State a party, so as to bring it within the original jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States, under article third, section second of the Constitution.

"It is not sufficient that it (a state) may have an interest in a suit between other persons, or that its rights, powers, privileges or duties come therein incidentally in question. It must be in terms a plaintiff or defendant, so that the judgment or decree may be binding upon it, as it is in common suits between parties and privies," to give the Supreme Court of the United States original jurisdiction (2 Story on Const., S. 1685).

This is simply an injunction bill and answer between private parties, and though it be necessary for the court, incidentally, to determine where the boundary line is, it can neither establish a boundary line or bind either State by its judgment; it is only res adjudicate between the parties of record, who are within its jurisdiction and under its control; for it is well settled that a court of equity will take cognizance where the person against whom relief is sought is within its jurisdiction, though the subject matter in controversy be beyond it.

One of the maxims in equity is that: "Equity acts in personam;" and it is a singular coincidence that in the leading case establishing this principle, Penn. vs, Lord Baltimore, 1 Ves. 444, the very boundary line (the New Castle circle) here in dispute was involved.

The bill in that case was for the specific performance and execution of articles of agreement entered into between the Penns and Lord Baltimore on May 10, 1732, for the determination and settlement of the boundaries between Maryland and Pennsylvania and the three lower counties.

"The first objection for defendant was, that this court has not jurisdiction nor ought to take cognizance of it, for that the jurisdiction is in the King in council."

Lord Chancellor Hardwicke, in answering this objection said: "First, the point of jurisdiction ought, in order to be considered and though it comes late, I am not unwilling to consider it. It is certain that the original jurisdiction, in cases of this kind, relating to boundaries between provinces, the dominion and proprietary government is in the King and council. * therefore, has no original jurisdiction on the direct question of the original right of boundaries, and their bill does not stand in need of that. It is founded on articles executed in England, under seal, for mutual consideration, which gives jurisdiction to the King's courts, both of law and in equity, whatever be the subject matter. An action of covenant could be brought in B. R. or C. B. if either side committed a breach; so might there be for the £5,000 penalty with-* * * * out going to the council. The King in council is the proper judge of the original right, and if the agreement was fairly entered into and signed, the King in council might look on that and allow it as evidence of the original right; but if that agreement is disputed it is impossible for the King in council to decree it as an agreement. That court cannot decree in personam in England unless in certain criminal matters, being restrained therefrom by Stat. 16, Car. 1, c. 10, and therefore, the Lords of the council have remitted this matter very properly to be determined in another place, on the foot of the contract. The conscience of the party was bound by this agreement, and being within the jurisdiction of this court, which acts in personam, the court may properly decree it as an agreement, if a foundation for it."

In Fowler et al. vs. Lindsey et al., 3 Dal. 411, suits in the nature of ejectments had been instituted in the Circuit Court of the United States for the district of Connecticut to recover a tract of land, being part of the Connecticut gore, which that state had granted to Andrew Ward and Jeremiah Hafley, and by whom it had been conveyed to the plaintiffs. The defendants pleaded that they were inhabitants of the State of New York and that the premises in question lay in the county of Steuben, in that state, and the plaintiffs replied that the premises lay in the State of Connecticut. A rule having been obtained to show cause why the actions should not be removed by certiorari into the Supreme Court of the United States, as exclusively belonging to that jurisdiction, Mr. Justice Washington, in disposing of the rule said: "The first question that occurs from the arguments on the present occasion respects the nature of the rights that are contested in the suits depending in the Circuit Court. Without entering into a critical examination of the Constitution and laws, in relation to the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, I lay down the following as a safe rule: That a case which belongs to the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, on account of the interest that a state has in the controversy, must be a case in which a state is either nominally or substantially a party. It is not sufficient that a state may be consequentially affected, for in such case (as where the grants of different states are brought into litigation) the circuit court has clearly jurisdiction. And this remark furnishes an answer to the suggestions, that have been founded on the remote interests of the State, in making retribution to her grantees, upon the event of an eviction.

It is not contended that the states are nominally parties, nor do I think that they can be regarded as substantially the parties to the suits; nay, it appears to me that they are not even interested or affected. * * * * And as it does not appear to me that this court has exclusive or original jurisdiction of the suits in question, I am of opinion that the rule must be discharged."

In consequence of the discharge of the rule the State of New York filed a bill against the State of Connecticut in the United States Supreme Court, (4 Dal. 1,) in which she set forth her title to the soil and jurisdiction of the tract in dispute and prayed a discovery, relief and injunction to stay proceedings in the ejectments pending in the circuit court of Connecticut. The injunction was refused because "the State of New York was not a party to the suits below nor interested in the decision of those snits."

The case of Howard vs. Ingersoll, 13 How. 380, which involved the determination of the boundary line between the States of Alabama and Georgia, originated in a state court of Alabama and was appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The case of New York vs. the Central R. R. of New Jersey, 12 Wall 455, involving the boundary line between the States of New York and New Jersey, originated in a state court of New York and was appealed to the United States Supreme Court, and Chief Justice Chase in delivering the opinion upon a motion to dismiss the writ of error, says: "We think that the statement of the case shows that the question arose under the agreement (made between New York and New Jersey, relative to the boundary line between the two states) and not under any act of Congress. The assent of Congress did not make the act giving it a statute of the United States in the sense of the twenty-fifth section of the judiciary act. The construction of the act was in no way drawn in question, nor has any title or right been set up under it and denied by the state court. It had no effect beyond giving the consent of Congress to the compact between the two states." And the writ of error was dismissed.

And the jurisdiction of inferior courts to pass upon state boundaries in suits between private parties, is clearly recognized in Rhode Island vs. Massachusetts, 12 Pet 727, where the court, after a citation of authorities, says: "When the boundaries of states can be decided collaterally in suits between individuals, we cannot by any just rule of interpretation declare that this court cannot adjudicate on the question of boundary, when it is presented directly between two or more states and is the only point in the cause."

Having, therefore, jurisdiction, let us now revert to the material question in the case: Is the assessed land in Delaware or in Pennsylvania?

If within the former, the injunction must be made perpetual; if within the latter, dismissed.

Controversy over the boundary lines between the provinces of Pennsylvania and Maryland, which involved the New Castle Circle, existed for nearly if not quite a century. Lord Hardwicke, in his opinion in Penn vs. Lord Baltimore, supra, delivered in 1750, said it had then "subsisted above seventy years," and it ended only in 1767.

James, Duke of York (afterwards James II), having by grant from his brother, Charles II, dated March 12, 1664, acquired title to the New Netherlands, the western boundary of which was the Delaware, or South river, subsequently by conquest from the Dutch, possessed himself of the territory on the west side of said river, now included in the State of Delaware, title to which he acquired July 29, 1674, by grant from his said brother. The last acquisition conflicted, it was claimed by Cecelius Calvert, Lord Baltimore, with his grant from Charles I, made June 20, 1632, which extended "unto that part of Delaware bay on the north, which lieth under the fortieth degree of north latitude, where New England terminates."

Lord Baltimore was loath to enter into any contention with the duke, but when Penn's grant came under consideration and his petition and original draft of charter were referred to the duke's secretary and Lord Baltimore's agents "that they might report how far the petitioners' pretensions may consist with their boundaries," both were anxious that Penn's grant should be so defined as not to affect their rights, and the duke wanted Penn's southern boundary set at twenty or thirty, while Penn suggested twelve, miles northward of New Castle.

The boundaries were finally adjusted to the satisfaction of all parties, and on March 4, 1681, Charles II granted unto "our trusty and well beloved subject, William Penn, esquire, all that tract or part of land in America * * * * bounded on the east by Delaware river, from twelve miles northward of New Castle town * * * and on the south by a circle drawn at twelve miles distance from New Castle northward and westward."

Thus originated the circle of New Castle.

On August 24, 1682, the Duke of York, by deed, conveyed to Pean the territory twelve miles around New Castle, and by another deed of same date the territory south to Cape Henlopen.

After these conveyances to Penn. Lord Baltimore protested agains the transfer of territory which he claimed was covered by his charter, and the Duke, now King (Nov. 7, 1685), in council ordered, that the peninsula lying between the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay be divided equally between them by a line running north from the latitude of Cape Henlopen.

While various portions of the circle have, from time to time been surveyed, the complete circle has never been; the most extended survey being that made in 1701, when upon petition of the Assembly of Pennsylvania, "that the division line between the counties of New Castle and Chester be ascertained, allowing the boundary according to the proprietary's letters patent from the King." Penn directed Isaac Taylor, of Chester, and Thomas Pierson, of New Castle, under the supervision of the magistrates of said county "to admeasnre and survey from the town of New Castle, the distance of twelve miles in a right line up the said river (Delaware) and from the said distance according to the King's letters patent and the deeds from the Duke, and the said circular line to be marked two-thirds part of the semi-circle."

The center of the circle or point of beginning was fixed by the magistrates "at the end of the horse dyke next to the town of New Castle," and on October 4, 1701, the surveyors having completed their work, reported, that on September 26, 1701, "We did begin in the presence of the said justices, at the said end of the horse dyke, and measured due north twelve miles to a white oak marked with twelve notches, standing on the west bank of Brandywine creek, in the land of Israel Helm, and from the said white oak we run eastward circularly changing our course from the the east southward one degree at the end of every sixty-seven perches, which is the chord of one degree to a twelve mile radius, and at the end of forty-three chords we came to Delaware river, on the upper side of Nathaniel Lamplugh's old house at Chichester, and then we returned to the said white oak in Israel Helm's land and from thence we run westward, changing our course one degree from the west southward at the end of every sixty-seven perches as before, until we had extended seventy-seven chords (which being added to the forty-three chords make two-third parts of the semi-circle to a twelve mile radius), all of which said circular line being well marked on each side of the trees to a marked hickory standing near the western branch of Christiana creek."

This line with its extension southwestwardly to the eastern line of Maryland has been the traditional and recognized boundary between Pennsylvania and Delaware since their organization as states, formally recognized by the latter by an Act of its Legislature, that treats of the sovereignty, jurisdiction and limits of the State—the second section of which provides, that "The limits of the State are declared to be the divisional lines between it and Maryland run and marked by commissioners and approved on the eleventh day of January, 1769; the circular line between it and Pennsylvania, surveyed and marked in 1701 under a warrant issued by William Penn in pursuance of the feoffment from the Duke of York, dated August 24, 1682, as the same has been held, occupied and recognized by the said states respectively ever since that time," &c.—and by the local authorities on both sides, in the discharge of their municipal duties.

The history of the official surveys of the western arc of the circle, is, briefly as follows:

On May 10, 1732, Charles, Lord Baltimore, and the heirs of William Penn, entered into articles of agreement to survey, settle and mark the boundaries between Pennsylvania and Maryland. Lord Baltimore's refusal to fulfill his part of this agreemet resulted in the suit of Penn vs. Lord Baltimore, supra, and a decree by Lord Hardwicke, in May, 1750, to enforce the specific performance of the contract on the part of the defendant. Before the terms of this decree were carried out, Charles, Lord Baltimore, died April, 1751, and the suit abated. When renewed against Frederick, Lord Baltimore, the heir of Charles, he resisted, refusing to be bound by the acts of his ancestor, but before any decree was made, entered on July 4. 1760, into an agreement with the surviving heirs of Penn, which substantially adopted and embodied the terms of the agreement of 1732, and the decree of 1750, which were—that a due west line should be measured from the Atlantic ocean, opposite Fenwick's Island, then known as and called Cape Henlopen, to the Chesapeake Bay, find its middle point and from said point run a line northwardly up the peninsula so as to be a tangent line to the periphery of the New · Castle circle, and mark the tangent point; then from said tangent point run a line due north until it should reach a point fifteen English statute miles south of the latitude of the most southern part of the city of Philadelphia, and there make another point or corner, which was to be and still is the northeast corner of Maryland. It was also provided that if the due north line from the tangent point should cut off a segment of the circle to the west, it should belong to New Castle.

Surveyors and commissioners were appointed to survey and mark these lines, but their progress was so slow that the parties became weary and dissatisfied, and in 1763 employed and sent out two celebrated English astronomers and mathematicians, Jeremiah Mason and Charles Dixon, to locate the boundaries. They arrived at Philadelphia in November, 1763, and after examination finding the work of their predecessors substantially correct, adopted their middle point in the base line, their tangent point and their measurement of the radius of twelve miles from the Court House in New Castle. They next proceeded to Philadelphia and found its southern limit to be Cedar, now South street, and extended its latitude sufficiently west to be due north of the tangent point, then measured south fifteen miles and from the tangent point ran a line due north to that latitude and there planted a stone, which marks the northeast corner of Maryland and the eastern end of the noted "Mason and Dixon's line."

In 1849 the states of Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland, appointed a joint commission to determine the point of intersection of said states "and to fix some suitable mark or monument whereby said point may hereafter be indicated," and Lieutenant Colonel J. D. Graham, a United States Topographical Engineer, was detailed to make the survey and measurement. Colonel Graham also took the Court House at New Castle for the center of the circle, and in his review of Mason and Dixon's work found it remarkably accurate, though not entirely free from errors. He found the radius to be two feet four inches too short; the tangent point 157.6 feet too far north; the point of intersection 143.7 feet too far south, and the tracing of the curve between those two points made Maryland the gainer by 1 87-100 acres from Delaware.

Having ascertained and marked the point of intersection of the three states, he next surveyed from that point northeastwardly the circular boundary between Pennsylvania and Delaware for a distance of about three and three-fourth miles and determined the distance at which a due east line from the northeast corner of Maryland would ent that circular boundary, to be four thousand and thirty-six feet.

This historical resume we have thought an advantage, if not a necessary aid, in determining whether the commission of 1889 merely re-located the old and recognized boundary line between the states or surveyed, located and marked, wholly or in part, a new one.

Upon the hearing of this case it appeared that the plaintiff had resided upon the tract in question since the spring of 1866; has always paid taxes upon the same and exercised and enjoyed all the rights, duties and privileges of citizenship in the State of Delaware, as had his predecessors in title for many years prior thereto.

The defendant denies that said land is in the State of Delaware, but on the contrary alleges it to be within the State of Pennsylvania, and avers that the plaintiff is now and always has been a resident of said State, and as proof thereof points to the report of the Commissioners of said States appointed in 1889, under acts passed by the respective Legislatures "to examine, survey and re-establish the boundary line which separates" the State of Delaware from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and which as "thus fixed, re-established and re-located" shows said tract to be within the boundaries of Pennsylvania.

The plaintiff's answer to this is, that said Commissioners exceeded their powers, that instead of re-locating and re-establishing the old and traditional boundary line between the States, they located, at least in the vicinity of plaintiff's property, an entirely new and different line, some twelve hundred feet farther southeast, within the State of Delaware, and thus transferred his property from Delaware to Pennsylvania, and that this action on their part was ultra vires.

In so far as this case is concerned it is unimportant whether or not the Commissioners exceeded the powers conferred upon them by their respective States, but the important question is, Have they materially altered or changed the boundary line heretofore existing between the States? If they have, and under ample authority, conferred by the States, then the assent of Congress alone is wanting, and if without such authority, then ratification by the States, as well as the assent of Congress is necessary, for it is not pretended that either has been procured.

But as we have said, the important question for determination is, Have said Commissioners materially altered or changed the boundary line heretofore existing between these States? If they have, whether with or without the assent of States is unimportant for the reason that such alteration or change has not received the assent or approval of Congress, and the old line consequently remains the boundary until that is procured.

In the State of Rhode Island vs. The State of Massachusetts, 12 Pet. 725, the court says: "In the next clause (of the tenth section of the first Article of the Constitution of the United States) is a prohibition against any State entering into any agreement or compact with another State or with a foreign power, without the consent of Congress or engaging in war, unless actually invaded or in imminent danger admitting of no delay. By this surrender of the power which before the adoption of the Constitution was vested in every State of settling these contested boundaries, as in the plenitude of their sovereignty they might, they could settle them neither by war or in peace by treaty, compact or agreement, without the permission of the new Legislative power, which the States brought into existence by their respective and several grants in conventions of the people."

The consent of Congress may, however, precede or be subsequent to the execution of the contract. (State of Virginia vs. State of Tennessee, 148 U. S. 503), and may be either expressed or implied. (Virginia vs. West Virginia, 11 Wall 39.)

In the present case it is not pretended that the consent of Congress has been given, either expressly or by implication, the position of the defendant being that the line run and marked by the Commissioners appointed in 1889 did not define a new boundary between the States, but merely re-located and re-marked the old and existing line established by the survey of 1701.

"The end of the horse dyke next to the town of New Castle" was the center of the circle from which the survey of 1701 was made, and the Commission of 1889 was able to identify and locate three points in the line of that survey, viz: the site of Lamplugh's house on the Delaware, the great bend in the Brandywine, where the white oak stood, and the stump of the old hickory tree at the corner of Kennett and Penusbury townships. Measuring then northward from the spire of the New Castle court house, the centre adopted by the commission, towards the site of Lamplugh's house, the radius of twelve miles fell over three thousand feet short of that point, nor would a circle described upon that radius pass through either of the other identified points—the line would fall entirely within the State of Delaware and cut off nearly five thousand acres of land belonging to that State.

West of the old hickory stump at the corner of Kennett and Pennsbury they were unable to verify any points as identical with the original line.

Another twelve mile radius, from the same center, was run north-westwardly until it intersected a due east line extended from the northeast corner of Maryland, and the point of intersection was adopted as the initial and the site of Lamplugh's house as the terminal point of the circular boundary

To reach the terminal point, from the adopted center, the radius had to be increased from twelve to twelve and eighty-one one hundredths miles, or over three-quarters of a mile. By this increase the curve line would pass through or close to all the identified points of the old survey, but when extended beyond, to the west, would encreach upon Pennsylvania, pass far west of the initial point and run a considerable distance into the State of Maryland—for the surveys of both Mason and Dixon and Colonel Graham, with a twelve mile radius from the same center—cut a small segment of a circle out of Maryland.

To overcome this difficulty a compound curve to be composed of two arcs with a common tangent at the hickory stump at the corner of Kennett and Pennsbury was agreed upon, and the radius of the second or western arc was shortened to eleven and fifty-eight one hundredths miles, so as to intersect the initial point.

This curve if extended south and west would not touch the eastern boundary of Maryland, but would pass, so testified John G. Jackson, a civil engineer and surveyor, about twelve hundred feet east of the tangent point on the perpendicular line between Delaware and Maryland, while the survey of 1701 extended in the same direction would just reach the eastern boundary of Maryland.

The survey and measurements having been completed, the commission, on April 11, 1893, resolved:

First. "That the boundary line between the State of Delaware on the north and the State of Pensylvania, shall be held to commence at the northeast corner and boundary stone of the State of Maryland." * * * and extending thence due east, four thousand one hundred and sixty-nine feet, to the monument now fixed and agreed upon by this joint Commission as the western terminus of the circular boundary line between the said States, &c."

Second. "That the monuments as inscribed and set under the direction of this joint Commission at the eastern and western termini respectively, of the said circular boundary line, be and are hereby adopted, approved and confirmed as the true and just terminal points of the said boundary line and that the intermediate line of boundary, being twenty-two miles and fifty-seven hundredths between the terminal points aforesaid as surveyed and delineated by W. C. Hodgkins, an assistant engineer, &c. * * * be adopted and approved."

The result of this action of the Commission if legalized would be to cede to Delaware the wedge-shaped tract belonging to Pennsylvania that lies between the eastern boundary of Maryland and the circular boundary of Delaware, extending nearly one mile and a half along the Maryland line and containing about eight hundred acres of land, and on the other hand cede to Pennsylvania a portion of Delaware lying north of a line drawn due east from the northeast corner of Maryland to the circular boundary, being between four and five hundred yards wide at said line and following the said circular boundary east and gradually tapering to a point at the corner of Kennett and Pennsbury, a distance of almost ten miles and nine-tenths.

While this perhaps is a fair and equitable exchange, and the boundary line would give a better one than that of 1701, yet until ratified by the Legislatures of the States and approved by Congress it is not and cannot be treated as a boundary line.

It is certainly desirable that this long disputed boundary line should be settled and definitely located, and since the Commission of 1889 have marked their survey and measurements with enduring monuments, it could now be readily accomplished by having its action ratified by the States and approved by Congress.

The land of the plaintiff lies north of the western arc of the compound curve, his residence six hundred feet north of it and six hundred feet south of the traditional line of 1701, as established by the evidence. His land, therefore, having always heretofore been considered and treated as within the State of Delaware, and the proceedings of the Commission of 1889 lacking the assent of the States and Congress, he is not liable for the tax assessed, and the injunction must be made perpetual.

STATE WEATHER SERVICE BUREAU.

This bureau was established by law for the purposes indicated in the act anthorizing its existence. The management was placed largely under the control of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, and appropriations have been made from year to year for its maintenance. The institute has annually prepared and filed reports which have been published in this report. The appropriation made in the general appropriation act of 1895 for the support of the bureau, however, failed to receive executive approval, and hence the bureau was left without this means of support. During the past year no observations appear to have been made by the institute and no report has been filed for publication. A request was made for the report, but the reply received stated that the institute did no weather service work for the year ending November 30, 1896. This will explain why the present report goes to the public without including any data with reference to meteorological observations or the other subjects usually covered by the weather report.

The improved facilities now in vogue in the United States weather service, by which the information regarding weather forecasts, etc., are so speedily delivered to the public render State Weather Service Bureaus of less importance, and it may be that these conditions may lead to the abandonment of our State Bureau.

ASSESSMENTS AND TAXES.

In 1874 the legislature passed the following act:

"The county commissioners of each county of the State, including the board of revision of taxes of the city of Philadelphia, shall, upon the first day of June, 1874, and upon the same day annually thereafter, make out, in tabular form, by assessment districts, a full statement of all property taxable for county purposes, showing the real and personal in separate columns, the amount of tax assessed for county purposes, and also the debt of said county, the same to be inclosed by mail to the Secretary of Internal Affairs, at Harrisburg; and in case of refusal or neglect to make such returns, the same may be enforced by mandamus."

Pursuant to the duties imposed by this act, the Secretary of Internal Affairs has prepared and furnished the county commissioners with blanks upon which to make returns to this department for the year 1896. The returns show the number of taxables, the number of acres of cleared and timber land, the assessed value of all real estate, the assessed value of real estate exempt from taxation, the assessed value of real estate taxable, number of horses and cattle and value of same, value of salaries and emoluments of office, value of property taxable for county purposes, aggregate amount of county tax assessed, at the rate prevailing in each county, amount of money at interest, value of stages, omnibuses, backs, etc., together with tabulations showing the aggregate value of property taxable for State purposes at four mills on the dollar. To this is added the amount of taxes collected locally for State purposes and the debt, if any, of each county.

TAXABLES.

The number of taxables in 1891 was 1,532,895; in 1892, 1,576,149; in 1893, 1,662,956; in 1894 1,684,946; in 1895, 1.774,138 and in 1896, 1.782,586. It will be seen from these figures that there has been a gradual increase from 1891 to 1896. A marked increase is noted in the counties of Adams, Allegheny, Fayette, Lackawanna, Lebanon, Luzerne, Schnylkill, Washington, Westmoreland and York, and a decrease in the counties of Bucks, Cameron, Columbia, Elk, Greene, Monroe, Montour, Philadelphia, Potter, Tioga, Union, Wayne and Wyoming. The fluctuation in the number of taxables reported from the city of Philadelphia is particularly interesting. In the year 1894, the number reported was 276,977; in the year 1895, 332,297, while for the year 1896, the number reported is 292,965. The total number of taxables returned for the whole State shows an increase of 8,448 over the number reported in 1895.

When it is understood that the amount of school appropriation received by each municipality and each school district from the State Treasurer is based upon the number of taxables, it will be seen that reform legislation is necessary.

Where there has been a decrease in the number of taxables, it is due probably to the fact that the returns in 1894 were too great, or that the returns for 1896 are incomplete. If due to the latter cause, the assessors were probably not mindful of the fact that the amount of appropriation for their school districts will be based upon the number of taxables returned.

CLEARED AND TIMBER LAND.

The blanks referred to also call for a return of the number of acres of cleared and timber land in each assessment district. The data received on this subject varies so from year to year that it is bardly worth while to make a comment on the returns. It was evidently the intention of the legislature to ascertain from year to year the amount of original forests still standing and what portion of the territory of the State had been made into farms. It is certain that a great portion of the acreage of the interior counties is not now either cleared or timber land, but is growing up with a second growth, and is not being used in any way. The assessors absolutely fail to make correct returns, and the data given is not worthy of much credence.

A classification of the acreage of the State which would show the amount of farm land, the amount of forest and the amount of land unused, would probably give information of value. This can only be accomplished by special legislation.

In 1891, the number of acres of cleared land reported was 12. 324,742; in 1892, 15,574,295; in 1893, 14,872,864; in 1894, 15,081,061: in 1895, 16,120,727, and in 1896, 15,871,281, showing a falling off in the last year of 249,446 acres. The number of acres of timber land was reported in 1891 at 7,662,549; in 1892, 8,369,142; in 1893. 8,296,112; in 1894, 8,417,327; in 1895, 9,085,318, and in 1896 at 8,733,548, showing a falling off of 351,770 in the number of acres of timber land reported in the year 1896 over that returned in 1895. It will be seen from these figures that there has been a marked increase in the number of acres of timber land since 1891; but the truth of this statement will not be borne out by the facts, for it is certain that there has been no increase in the acreage of timber land, but, on the contrary, a marked decrease. The hewing down of the native forests, which has been going on so rapidly for the last two decades, has taken from the Commonwealth a very large percentage of its timber growth.

The counties of Cameron, Chester, Dauphin, Forest, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lehigh, Lycoming, Mifflin, Northumberland, Potter, Susquehanna, Washington, Wyoming and York show an increased amount of acreage of timber land returned for the year 1896, over the amount returned for the year 1895. A striking illustration of this fact is shown in the return of Dauphin county, which, in 1895, returned 92,074, while in 1896, the number of acres returned is 101,081. In Clearfield county the returns for 1894, show 231,458 acres, and in 1895, 468,996 acres, and the same number of acres 168,996, were returned for the year 18.55.

In 1895, the counties of Delaware and Philadelphia made no return of cleared land. In 1896, the counties of Allegheny, Beaver, Delaware, Luzerne and Philadelphia failed to make said return.

In 1895, Delaware, Greene and Philadelphia made no return of timber land. In 1896, the counties of Allegheny, Beaver, Delaware. Greene, Luzerne and Philadelphia failed to make the same return.

VALUE OF ALL REAL ESTATE.

All the counties in 1895 and 1896 made returns of the value of all real estate. In 1895 the amount was $2.741.938.849; in 1896, $2,777,201,521. It is understood that these estimates are based upon the assessed value as returned from the several districts of the Commonwealth, and the amounts so given include the real estate exempt from taxation. Six years ago the valuation was given at $2,256.151,310. It will, therefore, be seen that there has been an increase of over five hundred millions. In Allegheny county, in 1895, the valuation was $496,942,325; in 1896, $499,636,395. Philadelphia shows an increase of $23,941,140, over the year 1895.

Marked decreases are found in the counties of Northumberland, Potter, Somerset, Sullivan and Warren. In most of the counties there is a fair increase. Where there are remarkable increases, especially in the rural counties, the changes are probably largely due to incomplete returns in former reports.

VALUE OF REAL ESTATE EXEMPT FROM TAXATION.

In 1891, the value of real estate exempt from taxation was $153. $14.427; in 1892, $234,801,553; in 1893, $239,243,753; in 1894, $245,368,752; in 1895, $270,920.645, and in 1896, $277,539,526. The counties of McKean made no returns in 1894 and 1895. There can be no room for doubt about the failure of the assessors in these counties to make proper returns, for it cannot be assumed that these counties bave no churches, schools or municipal property which is not subject to taxation. In other counties than these it is certain that there have been incomplete returns, for $277,539,526, does not even approach the great amount of money invested in churches, school, municipal, and other property not subject to taxation.

VALUE OF REAL ESTATE TAXABLE.

In 1891, the value of real estate taxable was reported at $2.092,336,883; in 1892, $2,308,767.431; in 1893, $2,351,190,037; in 1894, $2,389,232,748; in 1895. $2.471.018,204; and in 1896. $2,499,661,995, showing an increase in six years of $407,325,112, and from 1895 to 1896. of $28,643.791.

NUMBER AND VALUE OF HORSES, MARES, GELDINGS AND MULES OVER THE AGE OF FOUR YEARS.

In 1891, the number of horses, etc., reported was 506,988, and the value given as $32,777,460; in 1892, the number was 544,910, and the value $33,361,391; in 1893, the number was 561,368, and the value, $32,585,620; in 1894, the number was 550,134, and the value $30,162,309; in 1895, the number was 576,767, and the value $25,403, 400, and in 1896, the number was 578,022, and the value of the same $23,163,987. While there was a slight increase from 1891 to 1896, in the number of animals, there has been a decrease in value of $9,613, 483 in the last six years, and a decrease in the value of $2,239,413 in the last year. It is a fact that the price of these animals has greatly decreased in the past five years, and to this extent at least these returns represent the facts. Of the causes that have led to the decrease in the value of these animals, the most prominent is the introduction of electricity, which has, in recent years, largely displaced the horse as a motive power for street cars in the cities and on local lines. Another element that has entered very largely into the cause of depression of the price of horss, is the very rapidly increasing use of the bicycle. These, of themselves, have been sufficient to materially decrease the demand for horses and consequently lessen their value.

NUMBER AND VALUE OF NEAT CATTLE OVER THE AGE OF FOUR YEARS.

Under this classification of personal property we find that in 1891, the number was 654,338, and the value $12,423,333; in 1892, the number was 707,995, and the value $12,384,879; in 1893, the number was 692,259, and the value $12,148,429; in 1894, the number was 672,023, and the value $11,565,283; in 1895, the number was 667,788, and the value $11,660,891, and in 1896, the number was 632,806, and the value $11,681,963. These figures show a decrease in the number from 1895 to 1896, but a slight increase in the value. Comparing the figures for 1896, with those of 1891, we find a decrease in the number of 21,532, and a decrease in the value of $741,320.

The following table gives some interesting comparative data with reference to the average value of neat cattle during each of the years from 1887 to 1896 inclusive. In 1887 there were 640,478 cattle reported, valued at $11,920.572, or an average value of $18.61. The highest number was reported in 1892, to wit., 707,995, valued at $12,384,879, or an average value of $17.49. The lowest number reported was in 1896, to wit., 632,806, valued at $11,681,963 or an average value of $18.46. It will be seen that there has been but little change in the average value per head of cattle during the period covered by the table.

Average price per head for ten years $18.22.

A different condition exists, however, when comparisons are made of the number, value and average value per head of horses, mares, geldings and mules, as disclosed in the following tables.

In 1887 there were 484.558 animals returned under this head, valued at $30,052,084, or an average value of $62.02. The highest number was returned in 1896, to wit., 578,022, valued at $23,163,987, or an average value of $40.07. These figures indicate a remarkable change in the average value of these animals, for it is seen that the 484,558, in 1887, were valued at almost $7,000,000 more than the 578,022 in 1896. During the ten years the average value has been $57.02. The highest average value was in 1891, when it was $64.05. As before indicated, there has been but little change in the average value of cattle, but there has been a marked reduction in the values of horses, mules, etc., attributable as heretofore stated, to the very extensive introduction of electricity and the bicycle for the purposes for which animal power has always been used.

VALUE OF SALARIES, EMOLUMENTS OF OFFICE, POSTS OF PROFIT, PROFESSIONS, TRADES AND OCCUPATIONS.

5.291,739 $301,702,950

In 1891 the total amount returned under this head was 79,204,079; in 1892, $104,881,902; in 1893, $111,014,967; in 1894, $114,414,918; in 1895, $112,827,751, and in 1896, $115,377,135. While there appears to be a marked decrease in the valuations from 1894 to 1895, there is a noticeable increase from 1891 to 1896, the increase in that time being about thirty-six millions of dollars. These figures no doubt fall far short of giving the actual valuation existing under this classification, owing to under-valuations and to the fact that for none of the years has either Lancaster or Philadelphia county made any return.

AGGREGATE VALUE OF ALL THE PROPERTY TAXABLE FOR COUNTY PURPOSES.

In addition to the real estate assessed for taxation, which amounts in 1896 to something over two billions of dollars, there are other species of property subject to county taxation. The total value of property taxable for county purposes in 1891 was $2,216,903,213; in 1892, $2,459,538,840; in 1893, $2,507,066,937; in 1894, $2,545,500,738; in 1895, $2,621,047,121; and in 1896, $2,650,016,820. There has been a gradual increase from 1891 to 1896. It may be said that the same inequalities that exist with reference to the assessed valuation of real estate for taxable purposes undoubtedly exist with reference to other property under this heading subject to tax for county purposes. Whether personal property is undervalued to the same extent that real estate is, is a matter solely of conjecture, but it may be presumed that the percentage of assessed valuation or personal property to actual valuation is about the same as the percentage of assessed valuation to actual valuation of real estate. All the counties appear to have made complete returns under this heading. Among the counties showing a marked increase are Allegheny, Dauphin, Delaware, Lackawanna. Luzerne, Monroe and Philadelphia, and those showing a marked decrease from the year 1895, are Jefferson, North-umberland, Perry and Potter, while the net increase in the State is $28,969,699, over the amount returned for the year 1895.

AGGREGATE AMOUNT OF COUNTY TAXES ASSESSED.

An important feature of the assessment returns is that made by the county commissioners, which relates to amount and rate of taxes for county purposes. It is interesting to know what changes are made each year in the way of economies in maintaining county governments. This is manifest in the changes that occur year after year in the rate and amount of taxation. In 1891, the aggregate amount of taxes assessed was $18,250,660.87; in 1892, $19,829,680.78; in 1893, $18,851,798.73; in 1894, $19,935,994.04; in 1895, $20,387,168.08; in 1896, $20,758,185.06. It is understood that the rate of millage in each county is fixed by the respective boards of county commissioners, and that large burdens of indebtedness necessitate a higher millage in the levy of taxes for county purposes. Counties that are out of debt and whose county expenses are light, have a low rate of taxation; but where different conditions exist, such as great bonded indebtedness, large expenditures for the support of the poor and for the maintenance of expensive bridges, the rate of taxation is high. Notwithstanding the different conditions that exist in the several counties, the increase in the total amount of taxes each year since 1891, has been fairly uniform. Some of the counties which a few years ago had a high rate, have evidently paid their indebtedness and are, therefore, no longer required to pay a large interest account. In such counties a reduction of the rate of taxation is seen.

In Allegheny county for the year 1894, the amount of taxes assessed for county purposes was $891,111.81, and in 1895 $955,513.53; and in 1896, $964,183.14, an increase of $64,401.72, returned for 1895, over the amount returned for 1894, and an increase of $8,669.61, over the amount returned for 1895, making a total increase for two years of $73,071.33. Marked increases are also found in the counties of Beaver, Berks, Blair, Chester, Clarion, Dauphin, Delaware, Forest. Lackawanna, Lebanon, Luzerne, Schuylkill and Sullivan.

The counties showing the most marked reductions are Bradford, Bucks. Carbon, Greene. Jefferson, Lycoming. Mercer. Pike, Potter, Snyder, Union and Venango.

All the counties having made complete returns on this subject, it may be presumed that $20,738,185.06 is a close approximation of the amount expended during the year for the maintenance of the several county governments of the Commonwealth.

AMOUNT OF MONEY AT INTEREST, INCLUDING MORT-GAGES, JUDGMENTS, BONDS, NOTES, STOCKS, ETC.

In 1891 there was $579,036,227 returned as subject to taxation; in 1892, $590,882,560; in 1893, $607,664,408; in 1894, $616,043,452; in 1895, $620,029,507; in 1896, $670,803,246. Showing an increase of $91,767,019 over the amount returned in 1891. What percentage this amount bears to the actual amount at interest and upon which the State should receive four mills per dollar per amunu, as taxation, cannot be ascertained, but that many millions of dollars of this species of property escapes faxation is beyond the slightest doubt.

Extreme measures have never been adopted in Pennsylvania to compel complete returns of money at interest, but it is admitted on all sides that there is much to do in the way of important legislation and in educating the people of the Commonwealth up to a stricter accountability if not to lift them to a higher plane of honesty and integrity, in order that the tax laws may rest with equity upon all persons.

VALUE OF STAGES, OMNIBUSES, HACKS, CABS, ETC.

This species of personal property is made the subject of taxation for State purposes. There is a large amount of money invested in this property, and yet the amount returned in some counties is so trifling as to be hardly worthy of mention. In 1891 the total amount returned was $636,667; in 1892, $627,179; in 1893, $508,204; in 1894, $570,061; in 1895, $554,467; in 1896, $530,819. These figures show that the value of this kind of property was several thousand dollars less in 1896 than it was in 1891, but it is not believed that this is a true representation of the facts. In the county of Allegheny, where there are many hundreds of thousands of dollars invested in this species of property, less than one hundred thousand dollars was returned. In Berks no return was made for 1894, and only $7,040 returned in 1895; and in 1896 $6.890 was returned.

Cameron, McKean, Potter and Snyder making no returns of this class of property for the years 1895 and 1896.

Dauphin county, in 1894, with its numerous stages, hacks, etc., returned only $685, but there seems to have been something of a gain as the returns for 1895 show $4,945, and for 1896, $5,340. Huntingdon county returns only $540. Lackawanna county returns $23,835.

of which amount $10,580 is assessed for State purposes and $13,255 is assessed for county purposes. The counties of Allegheny, Crawford, Delaware, Luzerne and Schuylkill assess stages, omnibuses, hacks, etc., for county as well as for State purposes. The figures alone, as returned by the assessors, show how the law has been disregarded.

AGGREGATE VALUE OF PROPERTY TAXABLE FOR STATE PURPOSES AT THE RATE OF FOUR MILLS ON THE DOLLAR, INCLUDING MONEY AT INTEREST, STAGES, OMNIBUSES, ETC.

Under this head of taxation the State received, in 1891, $1,748,448.66; in 1892, $2,365,989.61; in 1893, $2,433,011.84; in 1894, $2,466,451.31; in 1895, 2,482,507.52; in 1896, $2,685,375.92.

The counties showing the greatest increase of State tax collected are Allegheny, Berks, Bucks, Cameron, Clinton, Crawford, Dauphin, Delaware, Elk, Erie, Lehigh, Luzerne, Montgomery, Schuylkill and Westmoreland. And the counties showing the greatest falling off are Carbon, Fayette, Forest and Juniata. The increase in State taxes from 1895 to 1896, on this class of property, is $202,686.40, of the total amount of taxes paid on this class of property in 1896, to wit: $2,685,375.92, $1,355,740.71 was paid by the city of Philadelphia.

COUNTY DEBT.

The total amount of county indebtedness reported is $62,615,-279.83, Allegheny county reporting $3,658,058.77, and Philadelphia $53,199,342.34. The counties reporting no debt are Bradford, Bucks, Butler, Centre, Clarion, Cumberland, Erie, Franklin, Fulton, Greene, Lawrence, Lebigh, McKean, Pike, Venango, Washington Wyoming. Lackawanna county, which reported no debt last year, has a debt of $120,000 this year. The counties that have increased their indebtedness during the year are Blair, Cameron, Carbon, Clearfield, Crawford, Forest, Indiana, Lebanon, Montour, Schuylkill, Sullivan, Tioga and Wayne. The following counties report an indebtedness this year, where they reported none for the year 1895; Lackawanna, Northampton and Susquehanna. The following counties reported a debt in 1895 and none in the year 1896: Fulton and Pike. All the other counties maintain the same indebtedness, or have reduced the amount. The total amount of county indebtedness reported in 1891 was $$4,773,192.42; in 1892, $63,602,502.43; in 1893, $63,982,537.24; in 1894, $63,743,368.40; in 1895, $62,937,468.01, and in 1896, $62,615,279.83, showing a net decrease in the total amount of county indebtedness for the year of $722,188.18.

The information referred to in these observations under the several headings is tabulated and published in Part II of the annual report immediately preceding the tabulations referring to the total amount of taxes collected for all purposes. A comparison of these tables with tables of former years will be of interest to those who have made or who are now making an investigation of the assessment of real and personal property for the purpose of taxation. No one who has not made a study of the data contained in this report and in previous reports of this department will be prepared to make a proper recommendation to the legislature with a view of equalizing the burdens of taxation.

TAXES.

In 1889 the legislature made provision for the collection of information showing among other things the amounts of money collected in the several counties of the Commonwealth,

1st. For the support of the poor;

2d. For the construction and repairs of streets, roads and bridges;

3d. For the support of the common schools;

4th. For other purposes than those above enumerated.

5th. Total amount of taxes collected for all purposes, including all amounts collected from the granting of licenses.

Some difficulty has been encountered in getting the county commissioners of the several counties to make complete and correct returns of the information called for in the blanks. For the year covered by this report all counties have made returns except Schuylkill. This county also failed to make a return last year.

TAXES COLLECTED FOR THE SUPPORT OF THE POOR.

During the year the amount of taxes assessed, levied and collected for this purpose was $1,591,371.13. This covers only the amount in counties that have no poor honses. Where such institutions exist appropriations are made directly from the county treasury by the county commissioners, for their support. In column one of the consolidated return, where the amount of taxes collected for all purposes is given, will be found opposite each county the amount, if any, that has been directly levied for the support of the poor. When no amount appears in this column it indicates that the county has a poor house and that it is supported by direct appropriation from the county treasury. It appears from the returns that there are thirty-eight counties that have poor houses, and the amount appropriated from these counties during the year was $802,498.58, making a total of $2,393,870.01 expended in the Commonwealth for this purpose. This amount, it is understood, does not cover the very large appropriations made directly from the State Treasury to the charitable institutions of the State in which many of the poor are maintained. For the previous year the amount expended for this purpose was $2,336,419.99, indicating an increase for the present year of $57,450.02.

TAXES COLLECTED FOR THE CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIRS OF STREETS, ROADS AND BRIDGES.

The total amount of taxes collected directly from the people for this purpose was $8,938,274.79. In addition there is appropriated annually from the county treasuries of many of the counties large sums for this purpose. This, of course, is paid out of the levies made for county purposes and must be added to the amount directly paid by the people, in order to show the total amount expended. The amount appropriated from the county treasuries was $231,008.93. or a total of $9,169.283.72. The amount expended for the previous year was $9,344,658.01, indicating a decrease of $175,375.29.

TAXES COLLECTED FOR THE SUPPORT OF THE COMMON SCHOOLS.

In column three of the consolidated return will be found the amount of taxes collected directly from the people through local assessments and levies for the support of the common schools. This does not include the amount appropriated directly from the State Treasury for this purpose. The legislature, at the session of 1895, appropriated $11,000,000 for the two years ending June 1, 1897. priation of at least $1,000,0000 for the support of the public schools, and this amount has been increased during the past ten years until it now reaches the enormous sum of $5,500,000. It is presumed that the legislature, realizing the revenues of the State were sufficiently large to warrant this appropriation, has given it to the public schools first, because the money was available for the purpose, and, second. to comply with the desire generally prevailing that everything possible should be done to relieve the people of local taxation. It was not intended, of course, that this large appropriation should continue to be made at each session of the legislature unless the revenues of the State should warrant it, and as the treasury is now in a depleted condition, it is hardly probable that the legislature of 1897 will appropriate so much as $5,500,000 for this purpose, much less make any increase over the liberal amount heretofore given. The revenues of the State will not warrant it, unless there shall be an increase in the tax imposed upon corporations, or some other plan of taxation adopted by which the revenues may be increased.

TAXES COLLECTED FOR OTHER PURPOSES THAN THE SUPPORT OF THE POOR, CONSRUCTION AND REPAIRS OF STREETS, ROADS AND BRIDGES, AND THE SUPPORT OF THE COMMON SCHOOLS.

In column 4 of the consolidated return will be found all taxes collected for purposes other than the support of the poor, the construction and repairs of streets, roads and bridges and the support of the common schools. It being understood, of course, that all the information contained in the consolidated returns pertains to taxes levied and collected for local purposes, and does not include amounts of money derived by virtue of laws providing for revenues for the State. The amount of taxes collected during the year under this heading was $25,826,281.85. This is largely collected for the purpose of meeting the expenses of the several county governments. The amount last year was $25,373,290.87.

TAXES COLLECTED FOR ALL PURPOSES.

In column 5 of the first division of the consolidated return will be found the total amount of taxes collected, not only in the several counties, but also in the State. This amount, $47,721,894.89, represents the money collected for the support of the poor, the construction and repairs of streets, roads and bridges, the support of the common schools, and the maintenance of county governments. It is probable that the amount would have exceeded $48,000,000 had a return been received from the county of Schuylkill. The amount last year, exclusive of Schnylkill county, was $47,917,140.48, indicating a slight decrease for 1896.

In the second division of the return information is given, showing:

1st. Amount of taxes collected on personal property.

2nd. Amount of taxes collected on occupations.

3rd. Amount of licenses of all kinds.

4th. Amount of taxes collected on real estate of railroad corporations.

5th. Amount of taxes collected on real estate of corporations other than railroads,

AMOUNT OF TAXES COLLECTED ON PERSONAL PROPERTY.

The amount collected during the year was $2,808,298.86. Last year $2,733,279.33, showing a slight increase.

AMOUNT OF TAXES COLLECTED ON OCCUPATIONS.

The amount collected during the year was $1,113,722.65. Last year, $1,084,828.60, showing a slight increase.

AMOUNT OF LICENSES OF ALL KINDS.

The amount collected during the year under this heading, which covers liquor licenses, wholesale and retail, and peddlers' licenses, was $5,113,975.60. Last year, $4,943,937.65, showing a considerable increase.

AMOUNT OF TAXES COLLECTED ON REAL ESTATE OF RAIL-ROAD CORPORATIONS.

The amount collected during the year was $800,087.89. Last year, $741,293.66. This item of taxation is made up largely from property owned by railroad corporations and not necessary for use in conducting the transportation business. It includes, also, the taxes collected under local laws in the county of Allegheny, where the right to tax railroad property for local purposes exists.

AMOUNT OF TAXES COLLECTED ON REAL ESTATE OF CORPORATIONS OTHER THAN RAILROADS.

The amount collected during the year was $2,071,864.01. Last year, $1,863,835.41, showing considerable increase.

The object in collecting annually the data with reference to the amount of taxes collected for local purposes was undoubtedly to furnish the Legislature the most positive information ascertainable for use in the effort to re-adjusting the tax laws of the Commonwealth. Whether or not it was intended that this law should remain on the statute books longer than to secure this information is not known. The relative amounts paid by corporations into the State Treasury and the amounts paid upon real estate held by individuals into the local treasuries are fairly well ascertained, and the equality or equity which should exist between corporations and individuals as to the amount of taxes paid for all purposes can now be fairly ascertained. The only difficulty remaining is to ascertain how near the appraised value of the stock of corporations approximates the actual valuation of the stocks, and how far the assessed valuation of real estate, on which taxes are levied for local purposes, approximates the actual valuation. The investigations made show that great discrepancies exist in the appraisement of real estate. While the law requires the assessor to value a piece of real estate at its actual value, or at what it would sell for at public sale, it is a fact that cannot be disputed, and which no one will even attempt to dispute, that in every county of the State the assessed valuation of real estate is far below the actual valuation. In some counties it is scarcely 25 per cent. of the actual valuation. In a few counties it reaches perhaps 75 or 80 per cent. This observation is made on conditions that exist generally in the several counties, as compared with one another. Then, too, great injustice is done by the assessors either by favoritism or through lack of judgment, in fixing the valuation of property for taxable purposes. Owners of real estate are, of course, interested in having as low an assessment of their property as possible, because this is an indirect way of escaping taxation. The selfishness of human nature is such that there is a willingness to let the neighbor bear all the taxes which equity would require to be distributed fairly among all taxpayers. Investigations have been made by this department and by a tax conference, on the part of the Commonwealth, to ascertain how near the assessed valuation approximates the actual valuation, and the disclosures made by the investigations have been appalling. They indicate that there has been an absolute disregard of the law which requires the assessor to fix the valuation at actual value. Nothing but the most rigid enactments, coupled with penaltics for violation of the law, will obviate the defects and abuses that exist to so glaring an extent in the valuation of the property of individuals for taxable purposes. To what extent similar conditions exist in the appraised valuation of the capital stock of corporations is easily ascertained, as the officers of each corporation are required by law to make a sworn return of the value of their capital stock, and they are required to make the valuation not lower than the lowest price at which the stock may have been sold during the fiscal year covered by their report to the Auditor General. It would seem, therefore, not unreasonable to suppose that there is a nearer approach to the actual value of the capital stock of corporations in the appraisement made to the Auditor General than there is in the assessed valuation of real estate by the local assessors. The owner of real estate is not required to make any verified return of his real estate as to its value, and he can use whatever influence may to him seem proper or expedient with the assessor to fix the valuation as low as possible.

At all events, the tax problem is a very serious one for the Legislature to consider, and unless the members can free themselves from the selfish interests that usually control human action, it may be assumed that the constitutional requirement of uniformity in taxation will not be accomplished.

THE BUREAU OF INDUSTRIAL STATISTICS.

The annual report of this bureau is bound separately and is known as Part III of the reports of the Department of Internal Affairs.

In the report for 1896 a broader foundation for statistics known as comparative, and by which from year to year the same manufacturing establishments make report and comparison by years is made therefrom, has been laid. These statistics, which were first collected in 1892 and continued through each of the years up to the present time, cover fifty one industries, representing 381 establishments, and have been found to be such a valuable index to the business pulse that it was deemed of important consideration to extend the work in the report for 1896. Every prominent industry of the State is represented by a much larger and better distributed number of establishments than in previous years, and it is the belief of the bureau that this work will become, as the years advance, of much value to the business public. It will also be of increased interest to the wage earners as more fully showing their average daily wage and average yearly earnings.

The manufacture of pig metal in the State is fully covered. All of the production is given, capital invested, value of the raw material out of which the pig metal is produced, that is to say, the ore, scrap or cinder; the number of days in operation, number of persons employed, aggregate of wages paid, total tonnage and its market value.

Another work of interest will be found in the compilation of statistics relative to iron and steel rolled into finished form. care has been exercised in getting returns from all of the establishments turning out a product of either rolled iron or rolled steel. By rolled iron or steel is meant bars, rods, bolts. hoops, skelp, shapes, rolled axles, iron and steel rails, iron and steel plates, sheet iron and steel, cut nails and cut spikes. The same general statistics are given relative to rolled iron and steel are are given in the production of pig metal. As the averages procured from an average made from pay rolls of the number employed and the average days of employment must necessarily, to some extent, be theoretical, the bureau has made an effort in some establishments to follow the wage earner by his individuality throughout the pay rolls of the year, and so far as this work has gone it has, of course, given the actual individual earnings of the employed connected with the establishments considered. The work has been done without prejudice by personal examination of the pay rolls of the respective establishments and of persons who have retained their connection with the concerns throughout the year without respect to high or low earnings. This being the only method of absolutely knowing what the earnings of the wage earners are, the bureau regrets that it has been unable to prosecute the work through a greater number of establishments.

While the manufacture of tin plate and the silk industry of the State were specially dealt with in the report for 1895, showing in the one case the complete process of manufacture and in the other the increase of power, spindles, etc., as compared with the Federal census of 1890, this year only such compilations have been made as will afford comparison with the reports of 1895 as to number employed, days in operation, total wages paid out, total product and value of production.

Statistics relative to strikes are continued in the report for 1896. Valuable statistics have also been compiled covering gas works, electric light works and water works. All such plants under municipal control in the State have been considered and enough under private and corporate ownership that comparison may be made therewith. The topics considered are, cost of the plant, value of the plant, capacity, cost of production, selling price and salaries and wages. The work will be of considerable interest.

BUREAU OF RAILWAYS.

Under the Constitution and laws of the Commonwealth all railway corporations, whether steam or street railways, and all telegraph. telephone and canal corporations are required to make annual report to the Secretary of Internal Affairs for the fiscal year ending June 30th. The blanks used for making these reports are similar to those in use in most of the States of the Union, and are almost identical with those used by the Interstate Commerce Commission. They embrace questions with reference to capitalization, bonded indebtedness, receipts, expenditures, tonnage of different classifications, and, indeed, every important feature of the transportation problem. These reports are compiled and published as the Annual Report of the Bureau of Railways, as now organized in this department, and is designated No. IV. of the department reports. It is recommended that additional powers be given to the Bureau, so that the superintendent, or other person properly authorized, shall at all times have the power to make examination of railway structures to determine whether or not they are properly constructed, in order that the greatest freedom from accidents may be enjoyed by the passengers ou the roads of the State. The great number of fatal and nonfatal accidents among passengers, employes and other persons is a potent argument in favor of such additional supervision. While the structures and lines of most of the railways of the State are of the most substantial and enduring character, it is nevertheless a fact that some of the companies are not on the most advanced line in this direction. If railway companies are to eujoy the privileges given them under their charters and exercise the function of common carriers of passengers and commodities, they ought to build structures of the safest and most substantial character. For this reason some additional legislation should be passed authorizing the Railway Bureau to make annual investigations and examinations as to the condition of roads, both steam and electric, and their equipment, so that they may be kept in the safest possible condition at all times. A bill will be presented to the next Legislature covering the features herein suggested.

MINE INSPECTION.

The anthracite and bituminous coal regions of Pennsylvania are each divided into inspection districts, and the mining of coal in each district is supervised by a mine inspector appointed by law. There are eight anthracite and ten bituminous inspection districts in Pennsylvania. The duties imposed upon the inspectors are principally to see that the mining laws are enforced and that all possible means are taken to protect the lives and limbs of the persons employed in the mining industry. Annual reports are made by the inspectors to the Secretary of Internal Affairs and published as Part V of the department reports.

The Secretary of Internal Affairs is not authorized to exercise any authority over the inspectors. Indeed, there is no State official vested with such authority, and they are left largely to their own judgment in the discharge of their duties. It is suggested and recommended that the next Legislature make provision for the establishment of a Bureau of Mines in the Department of Internal Affairs, with a chief clothed with the power of supervision over the inspectors in the several districts of the State, in order that uniformity may be obtained in their work and in the making of reports, and, above all, in the proper execution of the laws that have been passed by the Legislature for the purpose of securing the greatest possible freedom from accident to the miners. This department will have prepared and presented to the Legislature a bill of this character and will recommend its passage.

PART II.
